SEDALIA, MISSOURI, MONDAY EVENING, JULY 1, 1907.

VOL. 1. NO. 180. PRICE FIVE CENTS

A BLOW OF FIST KILLED

JAMES WILSON, AGED 22 YEARS, IN KANSAS CITY ON THE SABBATH.

WAS FORMER WALKING DELEGATE

Blow Was Delivered by Albert Poindexter, Whose Brother, Luther,
Had Been Expelled From Teamsters' Union.

The Poindexter brothers, written
of in the following Kansas City dispatch, are sons of J. M. Poindexter, a former Missouri Pacific car inspector, who up to six years ago lived in Sedalia, and resided at 1012 East Fifth street, disposing of his property here only a short time ago. The family stood high in this community, and a host of friends here will regret to learn of the unfortunate tragedy. The dispatch follows:

Kansas City, Mo., July 1.—James Wilson, 22 years old, formerly walking delegate for the local teamsters'
union, was killed at Fairmount park, near this city, Sunday, in a fight with Albert Poindexter, 22, and Luther Poindexter, 19, as a result of a quarrel over a union labor difference.

When Wilson was an officer of the teamsters' union he had Luther Poindexter ousted from the union.

Luther Poindexter attacked Wilson
Sunday without immediate provocation, and Wilson grabbed him around the waist and arms and held him fast.

Luther's brother then stepped up and struck Wilson a blow with his first which broke Wilson's neck. Wilson died twenty minutes later.

The Poindexers ran, but were later arrested. Wilson met the Poindex-ers in this city Saturday night, and Luther struck him with an umbrella.
Wilson refused to fight with the excuse that Luther was not strong enough to fight him. Wilson bore an excellent reputation, and was foreman of a transfer company here.

A SABBATH WEDDING

Bridal Couple Departed for a Visit at Topeka.

Curt Hermann, a Missouri Pacific boilermaker, whose home is at Topeka, Kas., and Miss Dollie C. Dris-kell, daughter of S. D. Driskell, also a Missouri Pacific boilermaker, were quietly married in the presence of only relatives by Rev. S. S. Martin, pastor of the Northern Methodist church, at the home of the bride's parents, 1524 East Sixth street, at 10:30 o'clock Sunday morning.

The bridal couple left this afternoon for Topeka, Kas., to visit the groom's relatives, and will return here to reside. Both are popular and well-liked people, and friends will join the Democrat-Sentinel in extending congratulations.

A COUPLE OF WRECKS

They Occurred on the Missouri Pacific Sunday.

Two wrecks occurred simultaneously on the Missouri Pacific at 4 o'clock Sunday afternoon—one at Montserrat
and the other at Rock Creek.

At Montserrat, No. 64, in charge of Conductor Norman Crawford, had three loaded cars derailed, causing a switch and three rails to be torn up. The track was blocked for over two hours, No. 4, due here at 4:45 p. m., arriving two and one-half hours late.

At Rock Creek, L. & S. passenger
No. 215 ran over a derail switch, upsetting two cars and overturning
the engine. No one was injured. The track was blocked for over an hour.

HANG HIM TO VIADUCT

He Had Confessed to Assaulting 9-
Year-Old Stepchild.

Dalton, Ga., July 1.—Dock Posey, a middle aged white man, who was the self-confessed assaulter of his 9-year-old stepdaughter, was taken from the county jail here early this morning and hanged to a railroad viaduct in the middle of the city.

Wandered Away From Home.

The three-year-old son of Louis
Miller, a lineman, residing at 108
South Prospect avenue, wandered away from home at the noon hour today. The police and constable were notified, but soon afterward the mother found the child, several blocks from home.

Weighing the Mails.

Employees throughout the country
today began weighing mail at every postoffice in the United States. The work will be continued for six months.

St. Louis Plumbers Strike.

St. Louis, Mo., July 1.—Four hundred journeymen plumbers struck
here this morning for increased wages. Nearly all the plumbing concerns in the city are affected.

GOOD WOMAN IS CALLED

DEATH OF MRS. HATTIE ELIZA-BETH REMINGTON SUN-DAY EVENING.

NINE CHILDREN TO SURVIVE HER

Funeral Services at Fifth Street M.
E. Church, South, Tuesday Afternoon, Revs. Alton and Caskey Officiating.

Mrs. Hattie Elizabeth Remington,
one of Sedalia's elderly and esteemed residents, died of general debility at her home, 1315 South Kentucky avenue, at 7:10 o'clock Sunday night, aged 72 years.

Funeral services will be held at the Fifth street M. E. church, South, at 2:30 o'clock tomorrow afternoon. Rev.
V. B. Alton, formerly of this city, now of Lincoln, will officiate, assisted by Rev. J. F. Caskey.

Interment will be in the city cemtery, and the following will serve as pallbearers: D. H. Orear, Albert Loewer, Dr. J. N. Ferguson, H. R.
Camp, A. J. Perry and J. H. Rowron.

Mrs. Remington was born in Prince
William county, Va., in February, 1835. In May, 1859, she came to Missouri, settling at Saline county. On June 27, 1861, she was married to Wilburn P. Remington, who died fifteen years ago.

Of the union ten children were born, nine of whom are living, as follows: Mrs. Lillie Liggett, Muskogee,
I. T.; Misses Lucy and Leona and Wilbur, all of Sedalia; J. H. Remington, of Kansas City; Mrs. Pearl Lueking, St. Louis; Harry Remington, of the same place; Mrs. Anna Michaels, Las Vegas, N. M., and Mrs.
Julia Burks, of Hereford, Tex.

Mrs. Remington had been ill for some time, but bedfast only eleven days. During the past week all of her children have been with her constantly, ever administering to her wants, but in spite of the best of care and attention she passed peacefully away at the hour stated.

Mrs. Remington was a Christian lady, esteemed by every acquaintance,
and the news of her demise will be sorrowfully received by all who knew her.

JAPS TO RET/LATE

Appear to Think That Racial Hatred Exists in America.

Tokio, July 1.—The impression seems to be growing here that the anti-Japanese feeling and demonstrations in San Francisco are the outcome of a deeply laid plan which is based upon racial hatred existing in America and especially strong on the Pacific coast.

It is apparently certain that measures of retaliation are being seriously contemplated by influential men in political and business circles here,
and a boycott against American goods, it is believed, will certainly be one of the steps taken.

Choir and Ushers Entertained.

Misses Ida and Amelia Lorschach entertained the ushers and members of the choir of Sacred Heart church at their home Sunday afternoon. Social converse whiled away the time,
and refreshments of ice cream, cake,
candy and punch were served. Revs.
Father Neiberg and Daniel were present.

DAMAGE BY THE STORM

STRIP OF COUNTRY TWO MILES WIDE AND FOURTEEN MILES LONG DEVASTATED.

STREAMS OUT OF THEIR BANKS

Hail at Windsor Drifts Several Feet Deep in the Streets—Lightning Fires Store at Appleton City
—Other Damage.

The storm of last Saturday was much more severe south of Sedalia
than was known when the Democrat-Sentinel went to press on Sunday morning.

Windsor, Green Ridge, Kansas City Junction and other points suffered to the greatest extent. To chronicle all of the individual losses would require columns of space. One instance tells the story of many. Edward Bo-hon, who formerly lived southeast of Sedalia, but now farming three miles west of Kansas City Junction, had 100 acres of wheat utterly ruined by the hail, the heads being beaten from the stalks and the grain scattered upon the ground. He also had 120 acres of corn virtually driven into the earth. A Windsor dispatch says:

"A tornado, accompanied by a terrible hailstorm, Saturday stripped a section of country from two to three miles wide and fourteen miles in length, almost completely of crops.

Wheat harvest is on, and only a small percentage was cut. The balance, together with the corn and oats, was literally ruined. Hundreds of acres of corn ground is barren.

"In the streets hail drifted in places
two and three feet deep, and all streams, were over the bottoms. The damage, covering thirty square miles
or more, is inestimable at this time, but will amount to many thousands of dollars."

An Appleton City dispatch says:
"The general merchandise stock and store building of A. A. Johnson at Ohio postoffice, twelve miles east of here, was destroyed by fire caused by lightning during an electric storm
last night."

St. Louis was visited by a severe rain and wind storm at midnight
Sunday night that did much damage,
but there were no fatalities.

SCHOOL HOUSE BURNED

The One at Sweet Springs Hit Four Times by Lightning.

The public school building at Sweet Springs was struck by lightning no less than four times during the storm
last Saturday.

The structure ignited and was completely gutted by the flames, only the walls being left standing. Nothing was saved from the building.

The structure contained ten rooms,
and was erected fifteen years ago at a cost of $13,000.

There was a bonded indebtedness of $6,500 on the building, on which there was $9,000 insurance.

SCIENTIFIC BOXING BOUT

"Billy" Roach Will Meet Young Jeffries Here July 4.

"Billy" Roach, the machinist-puglist, has signed to meet Young Jeffries, of Wichita, Kas., at the rooms of the Sedalia Athletic club on the night of July 4.

Young Jeffries is cracked up to be a "goer," and a good match is looked for by local fans.

"Billy" is also arranging to pull off
another bout with either Freddie Weeks or Grover Hayes, the latter of Chicago, at Pueblo, Colo., on the night of July 28.

FELT THE EARTH QUAKE

Maryland Observatory Feels Several Shocks This Morning.

Washington, July 1.—An earthquake was recorded at the Cheltenham, Maryland, observatory at 3:14
this morning, the shocks lasting an hour.

The disturbances were comparatively greater than at Kingston, but not so great as at San Francisco. No reports of the damage done have been received.

Change at the Huckins Bar.

Peter Pehl, who has been conducting the Huckins hotel bar for some months past, retired today, and is succeeded by John McGrath, who also conducts the hostelry. There will be no change in the working staff.

Barn Hit by Lightning.

During the storm last Saturday the cupola on a new barn being erected by Elias Smith, two miles north of Houstonia, was struck by lightning,
but only a few shingles were displaced.

Meeting of the Barkeepers.

At the regular meeting of the Bar-keepers' union, Sunday night, Henry Gensky was initiated, and two applications balloted on. A social session followed the meeting.

THE GOLF TOURNAMENT

WILL BE PLAYED AT THE COUN-TRY CLUB ON THURSDAY AFTERNOON.

EIGHTEEN HOLES PLAY FOR A CUP

Begin at 2 O'Clock On Independence Day—Handicaps for the Different Players Arranged
By the Committee.

For the Independence Day tournament, the tournament committee of the Country club have fixed handicaps at the club house. Play will bement is for 18 holes play, and the prize is a cup. The name of the winner will be engraved on the cup, and it will be placed along side the other cups at the club house. Play will begin at 2 o'clock, July 4. Players will be paired on the day of the tournament. All whose names do not appear in the list here given will have a handicap of 40.

THE STRIKE SITUATION

Said the Boilermakers Will Resume Work Tomorrow.

Information from the Missouri Pacific shops this afternoon is to the effect that all of the men in the boil-ermaking department who struck last Friday, with the exception of the two who were discharged because they refused to work with non-union tinners, will resume work tomorrow
morning.

The men involved held a conference with Master Mechanic M. J. Mc-Craw this forenoon, the Democrat-Sentinel is informed, with the result stated above.

There was a report last evening
that the men would return to work
today, with the two exceptions stated, who would be transferred to the company's St. Louis shops, but it was premature, it appears.

REVEAL AGENCY SECRETS

FORMER STENOGRAPHER FOR PINKERTONS PRODUCES RE-PORTS OF OPERATIVES.

THEY ARE READ IN COURT ROOM

Show That Detectives Held Confidence of Unions and That One Handled Strikers' Relief—Sensations Promised.

Boise, Idaho, July 1.—In the Haywood trial this morning Morris Friedman, the former Pinkerton stenographer, was recalled for further examination.

The confidential reports upon the miners' strike in Colorado in 1903-4, which were taken from the Pinkerton detective agency at Denver by Friedman, were read and identified by him.

He also identified several more documents, which he took while working for the detective agency. The prosecution interposed no objection to any of the documents.

Friedman identified several letters which, he said, were written by Detective McPartland, but the defense did not offer them in as evidence and declined to even permit counsel for the state to see them.

The first detective report showed that an operative named A. W. Gra-tias handled the federation's relief fund at Globeville during the strike,
and that Gratias cut down the relief
given out in order to create sentiment against Haywood.

The succeeding report dealt with the federation convention in Denver
in May and June, 1904, and the actions and sentiments of the miners convention of United Mine Workers of America in Colorado in 1903.

The defense expects to conclude its direct testimony this week, but promise to bring out many sensations before doing so.

PRISONER MADE HIS ESCAPE

Arthur England, While Being Taken to Jail This Forenoon.

Arthur England and Frances Prewitt, the latter an inmate of a disorderly house, were arrested by Officers Wood and Card Sunday, pursuant to instructions from Chief Boult to arrest the two whenever they were caught in each other's company. Both were locked in jail and arraigned in police court this morning. The former was fined $25 and the latter $5.
Both paid.

Immediately afterward England
was arrested for disturbing the peace of the Prewitt woman, by Constable Love. The prisoner was being taken to jail, via East Second street. At Hall's billiard hall, he asked permission of Deputy Constable Howlett to see a man inside and entered the place, the deputy remaining outside.

England went through the place and escaped by a rear door and has not been found.

THE "LID" WAS OFF

No Trouble to Get a Dram in St. Louis County Sunday.

St. Louis, July 1.—The lid was off in nearly every section of St. Louis county yesterday, and the hardest places to obtain a drink were in the remote and unimportant communities. In all well-known places beer and liquor were freely sold. In the city the usual dryness prevailed.

Notwithstanding Sheriff Hergel
and his deputies, together with an extra force of special deputies, were scouting for violators of the Sunday law, liquor was sold freely. No arrests were made.

Mrs. Garber's Condition Serious.

Mrs. Alonzo Garber, who was injured in a runaway accident Saturday morning, as told in Sunday's Democrat-Sentinel, was still unconscious when heard from today, she having been in that condition since the time of the accident.

Will Meet With Local Lodge.

Miss Almaretta Morgan, of Kansas City, grand chief of honor of the Degree of Honor, auxiliary to the A. O.
U. W., will visit here tomorrow and will meet with Mistletoe lodge in the afternoon.

Helping Out at "Eddie's."

Al N. Bayne, one of the city's cleverest and most capable caterers,
is assisting temporarily in the wet
goods department of Eddie McGur-ren's West Main street place.

TO FORM A NEW PARTY

WESTERN FEDERATION OF MIN-ERS WILL NOW ENTER NA-TIONAL POLITICS.

ARE FOR SOCIALIST PRINCIPALS

Will Unite With Brewery Workers and Enter Actively Into the Next Political Struggle.

Denver, Colo., July 1.—The Western Federation of Miners in their convention today adopted a preamble
for the constitution and by-laws of the federation, which in effect pledges
all members to socialism, and it is the announced intention of the leaders of the organization to call a convention at Chicago for the purpose of organizing an industrial and political party that will place a ticket in nomination for the next national election.

The Western Federation and the Brewery Workers' union, it is expected, will form the nucleus of a new national organization which will try to become a factor in the political life of the country.

DIED OF A SPIDER'S BITE

The Infant Son of Nathan Edwards,
a Carpenter.

The infant son of Nathan Edwards,
a carpenter, residing at Walnut and New York avenue, died of blood poisoning, resulting from a spider's bite,
at his parents' home at about 9 o'clock Sunday night.

Funeral services will be held at the home tomorrow and interment will be made in the city cemetery.

About two weeks ago the parents of the child noticed a swelling on the lad's arm. It grew more painful day by day. Physicians were consulted and the lad was finally operated upon, but the deadly poison had already taken effect and death came at the hour stated.

STRICKEN WITH PARALYSIS

Former Kansas Official, Once Famous, Near Death's Door.

Gaylord, Kas., July 1.—Webb Mc-Nall, who, as state superintendent of insurance under Governor Leedy, gained notoriety in ousting several insurance companies from Kansas,
was stricken with paralysis last night
and this morning his condition is serious.

WAS SEALED UP IN JARS

GOOD COIN BY AN AGED WOMAN WHO DIVIDED HER MONEY
BEFORE SHE DIED.

AT PRESENT IT CANNOT BE FOUND

Hired Hand Was Left $200, But He Has Disappeared, After Giving Lawyer Power of Attorney to Collect.

Springfield, Ohio, July 1.—The hearing of exceptions to the account of Henry White as executor to the estate of Barbara Bryon in probate court brought out a remarkable story.
The decedent was an old colored woman, who lived in a cabin at Clifton, this county. Her two daughters testified that just a week before their mother died she had them and their husbands count her money, which she had concealed about the house.

They testified that she had $700.
She ordered $250 of it sealed in a jar and labeled "Josephine" and $250
more sealed in another jar and labeled "Rebecca." They put $100 in a third jar and labeled it "two-sons-in-law." The remaining $100 was placed in a drawer for current expenses.

Barbara Bryon lived alone with the exception of Favus Curry, colored, a hired hand. He disappeared the morning of her death.

Testimony was to the effect that he came to this city and ordered a suit of clothes and made a deposit of $10. He flashed a big roll of bills.

The day the old woman was buried her daughters searched for the jars
they had sealed, and they were missing. A will was found. It provided that $400 should be spent for funeral expenses and Curry was ordered to pay $200. The remainder of the estate was willed to the daughters.

During the hearing J. S. Walker, an attorney from Columbus, put in an appearance with a power of attorney from Curry. Judge Geiger told Mr. Walker that it was most important that his client appear in person to testify and he gave him until Monday to have Curry in court.

A Mrs. Baldock testified that Curry confessed to her of taking $400 of the money, but claimed that Mrs. Bryon gave it to him. Curry will have to testify to get the $200 left him under the will. His attorney asked the court to protect his client from arrest
while in the city. It was denied.

DIED OF PARALYSIS

Mr. S. W. Johnson Passed Away On Sunday Evening.

S. W. Johnson, who was stricken with paralysis the middle of the past week, died at his home, 3 1/2 miles north of Green Ridge, at 6 o'clock
Sunday evening, aged 78 years.

Mr. Johnson was a native of Ohio,
but came to Missouri thirty-eight years ago, and located on the farm where he died, and where his wife died less than a year ago.

The deceased is survived by six children, two sons and four daughters, all grown, three of whom reside in distant states. He had been a member of the M. E. church, South, many years, and was one of the most highly respected men of the community.

The funeral services will be conducted at Prairie View chapel at 10 o'clock Tuesday morning by the Rev.
Bruner, of Green Ridge, and the interment will be in the Green Ridge cemetery.

STRIKE BREAKERS ARRIVE

Telegraph Operators From the East
Take Union Men's Places.

San Francisco, July 1.—The first installment of strike breakers to take the places of the union telegraph operators reached San Francisco yesterday and were put to work in the main offices of the Postal and Western Union today.

They are all regular employees from eastern offices. Among the imported men are several chief operators.

Trouble With Its Wires.

The Postal Telegraph Co. had serious trouble with its wires today, as the result of storm disturbances.

NOT SEDALIA'S FAULT.
What has become of the Interurban
road?

We haven't heard anything regarding the project for several weeks,
and that it went into "inocuous desul-tude" just at the time when it was expected that the promoters were about to appeal to Sedalia for aid, has left the erroneous impression with many people, both at home and abroad, that Sedalia did not come to the front with her portion of the funds needed, and that in consequence the project has been abandoned. It is due to the good name of the city that such reports should be contradicted, and that the world should know that no proposition has as yet been submitted to the citizens of Sedalia, or as far as this paper knows,
to the Business Men's association.

Certainly if that body has received any overtures the fact has never been made public, and whatever action, if any, was taken, was not and could not be claimed as the action of the people of this community.

It has always been said by the leading local men of affairs ever since the idea of an interurban line was first agitated, that when the time arrived for Sedalia to act, and a feasible and well grounded plan
that promised success was presented,
the city would do its part, and the Democrat-Sentinel believes these statements would have been carried out, and whatever sum was right and just would have been raised.

It is, therefore, the height of injustice that the false idea that Sedalia has refused to do its part has been created, and it would be rather a neat and gracious act for the promoters of the road to give out a statement, telling just what has caused the present lull in their one time active efforts to establish the enterprise.

The above written before an opportunity was given to learn the real situation, will serve as an introduction to what follows.

As a matter of fact, the only cause of the suspension of activities is the tightness of the money market. J.
W. Mellor, who is one of the incorporators of the proposed line, and one of those who have been most active in pushing the project, states that nothing can be done until after Aug.
1, sharply because it is an impossibility to sell bonds at any figure just at this time. He says that contracts for the entire right of way from Jefferson City to Sedalia have been secured, that $100,000 has already been subscribed, $25,000 of which has been paid, but that until the bond issue necessary to complete the road is placed, Sedalia will not be asked to subscribe, nor will any money be spent on the roadbed. In other words, it is the intention not to shovel a pound of dirt until funds for the completion of the entire line and its thorough equipment with modern and up to date rolling stock,

electric devices and other necessary
adjuncts, are assured.

They figure that it is far better not to start at all than to begin and be compelled to stop on account of lack of money.

From all of the above it will readily be seen that Sedalia has not and does not stand in the way of the project, but on the other hand has not been asked as yet to aid the enterprise.

When action is necessary and Sedalia is called upon it will be found,
as always, ready to meet any just demands and contribute its share of the funds.

CATHOLICS AND DIVORCE.

James Cardinal Gibbons contributes
a masterly paper to the series,
"Marital Unrest," running current in the Delinquent. He says:

The divorce problem is now occupying the attention of master minds.
It is an open and burning question in religious, moral and civil circles, and Cardinal Gibbons writes in no uncertain language concerning the stand his church has always taken on this important question.

Men and women, irrespective of their religious beliefs, may well consider the words of this eminent divine who declares in no uncertain words that the church has ever maintained, in accordance with the teachings of our Savior that no man can lawfully have more than one wife,
and no woman have more than one husband. The rights and obligations of both consorts are correlative. The church has also invariably taught that the marriage compact, once validly formed, can be dissolved only by death, for what God hath joined together man can not put asunder. According to the religion of Jesus Christ, conjugal infidelity does not warrant either party to marry again.
Hence it happens that in Catholic countries where faith is strong, as in Ireland and the Tyrol, divorces are almost unheard of.

In considering marriage and divorce in ancient days the eminent churchman says that if we would clearly understand whither, as a nation, we are drifting when we forsake
the christian precepts concerning the indissoluble nature of the marriage tie, the history of woman in pagan countries should enlighten us. Woman in pagan countries, with few exceptions, suffered bondage, oppression and moral degradation. She had no rights that the husband felt bound to respect. The domestic life of Greece,
it is true, was founded on monogamy.
But while the law restricted the husband to one wife as his helpmate and domestic guardian, it tolerated and even sanctioned the "hetairai," who bore to him the relation of inferior wives who enjoyed his society more frequently and received more home-
age from him than his lawful spouse.

While the education of the wife was of the most elementary character, the greatest care was lavished in cultivating the minds of the "hetairai,"
that they might entertain their paramour by their wit while they fascinated him with their charms. The wife was the beast of burden, the mistress was the petted and pampered animal. These "hetairai" derived additional importance from being legally chosen to offer sacrifice on certain public occasions. This demoralizing system, so far from being deplored, was actually defended and patronized by statesmen, philosophers and leaders of public opinion, such as Demosthenes, Pericles and Lysias, Aristotle and Epicurus.

Solon erects in Athens a temple
to Venus, the goddess of impure love.
Greece is full of such temples, while there is not one to chaste, pure conjugal love. No virtuous woman has ever left a durable history in the record of Greece. The husband could put away his wife according to his capricious humor, and take a fairer, younger and richer bride. He could dissolve the marriage bond without other formality than attestation in writing before an archon; and the wife had practically no power to refuse as she was completely under the dominion of her husband. She was a mere chattel, marketable at will, nor had she any power to dissolve the marriage without the husband's consent.

In reference to the shame of the Romans of old the cardinal declares that so notorious were their morals in the time of Augustus that men preferred the unfettered life of celibacy
to alliance with partners bereft of every trace of female virtue. The strict form of marriage became almost obsolete and a laxer one, destitute of religion or civic ceremony,
and resting solely on mutual agreement, became general. Each party could dissolve the marriage bond at will and under the most trifling pretext, and both were free to enter at once into the second wedlock.

Marriage was accordingly treated with extreme levity. Cicero repudiated his wife, Terentia, that he might obtain a coveted dowry with another;
and he discarded the latter because she did not lament the death of his daughter by the former. Cato was divorced from his wife, Attilia,
after she had borne him two children,
and he transferred his second wife
to his friend, Hortensius, after whose death he married her again. Augustus compelled the husband of Livia to abandon her that she might become his own wife. Sempronius Sophus was divorced from his wife because she went once to the public games without his knowledge. Paulus Emilius dismissed his wife, the mother of Scipio, without any reason whatever. Pompey was divorced and remarried a number of times. Sylla repudiated his wife during her illness, when he had her conveyed to another house. Wives emulated husbands in the career of divorces. Mar-tain speaks of a woman who had married her tenth husband. Juvenal refers to one who had eight husbands
in five years. St. Jerome declares that there dwelt in Rome a wife who had married her twenty-third husband, she being his twenty-third wife.

GETTING ACQUAINTED.

There is nothing like getting well acquainted to knock erroneous notions out of people's minds. At least two-thirds of the complications of the past which led to serious disagreement, if not to open hostility, have been traceable to the differences due to distance and lack of close intercourse. Modern methods, which by means of steamship and cable lines
are bringing everybody into touch,
are steadily doing away with causes of misunderstanding. Intelligent and unbiased men and women, no matter what their own beliefs, political, religious and social, who travel about the world and learn to know the natives of other regions, have most of their prejudices removed and find that there is a great common humanity where all can meet on fairly equal terms.

Something of this sort is suggested by a statement coming from Rev.
Dr. A. N. Hitchcock, secretary of the American Board of Foreign Missions
for Interior States, who is now abroad and has been visiting China.
He writes frankly that he has modified preconceived ideas of the Chinese, and on getting acquainted with them finds them possessed of many admirable qualities. He gives free rein to his opinions, and says of the Chinaman that he is "more of a man than I supposed, and on the whole,
not so mysterious," adding: "He enjoys his food, wears clothes for comfort and decency, loves his children —especially the boys—honors his ancestors, has some notions on religious subjects, is inclined to be afraid of the spirits—like some Americans—and objects to having foreigners steal his country. These are all understandable traits and identify the Chinese citizen as a brother in our common human family." On the whole, the Chinaman, taking him in his entirety, is not so bad a sort as some would like to make out. If he has what seem like grave faults to western eyes, is it not also true that he has some conspicuously redeeming virtues? And are we at all sure that if judged by his standard we would appear any better advantage than he does when estimated by ours?

It is never safe to condemn a nation by wholesale. But no risk is run in giving every race credit for the good qualities it possesses, for it is a reasonable assumption that without a large mixture of worthy purpose
it would not long exist, and China is a pretty ancient kingdom.

KNEE OF A POLICEMAN

WAS OCCUPIED BY MISS MARY A.
HOSKINS, A PRETTY ST.
LOUIS GIRL.

TROUBLE WAS CAUSED FOR BOTH

Telephone Message Brings Lieutenant to Room of Patrolman Off Duty and He Is Suspended on Charges.

Because Lieutenant Hess found Policeman Israel with a young woman sitting on his lap and twining
her arms around his neck he arrested him, says Sunday's St. Louis Post-Dispatch. Just for that, too, Acting Chief Gillaspay suspended him and preferred charges against him of "conduct unbecoming an officer."

Miss Mary A. Hoskins, the young woman in the case, told both Lieutenant Hess and Chief Gillaspay that she does not consider the conduct of Israel "unbecoming."

Now, what will President Stewart and Commissioners Bland, Jones and Fristoe say about it?

There is no regulation in the police manual on the subject, and it seems doubtful whether the question of spooning is "becoming" or "unbecoming" a policeman has ever been the subject of official investigation
before.

Robert Bertrand Israel is the rather romantic name of the policeman.
He is 30 years old, a giant in physique, smooth faced and good looking.
He is fond of good meals, and it is,
therefore, not surprising that he took an interest in Miss Hoskins,
who, it appears, served him at a restaurant at 104 North Fourteenth street.

Israel left his beat in the Carr street district at 5:30 to go to supper at the northeast corner of Fourteenth and Olive streets. Instead of having Miss Hoskins wait on him at the restaurant he invited her to his room. Somebody telephoned head quarters that a policeman in full uniform was making love.

Hess received the message and hurried into the room without knocking. He says Miss Hoskins was sitting on Israel's lap with her arms around him.

He took the pair to the four courts and before Chief Gillaspay. The suspension followed. Then Israel was ordered to make out a report. Such a report few policemen—certainly few men in other walks of life—are ever ordered to make out. But Israel made it in a clear round hand, as follows:

"Lieutenant William Hess, Commanding Central District:
"Dear Sir—I am a probationary patrolman, assigned to the fourth district. I left my beat at 5:30 p. m. for supper. I have known Miss May Hoskins about three months, during which time she has been employed as a waitress at the restaurant where I board."

"I had an appointment with Miss Hoskins at 6 p. m. at Fourteenth and Olive streets, across from where I room. I arrived there at 6 p. m.
and I sent a friend across the street
and he told her I wanted to see her."

"She came across the street and we went to my room. We were there about ten minutes. Miss Hoskins is employed at 114 North Fourteenth street and rooms at 1503 Washington avenue."

"I was brought to the station by Lieutenant Hess and suspended. Miss Hoskins, so far as I know, has been honest, industrious and respectable.
Respectfully, (Signed)
"ROBERT B. ISRAEL,
"218 North Fourteenth Street."

BUCKET SHOP TROUBLE

Two Members of a Mexico, Mo., Concern Under Arrest.

Mexico, Mo., July 1.—A bucket shop, involving several thousand dollars, has been taken into court here, and Gratz Wyatt, of the firm of Buck-Wyatt & Co., of St. Louis, has been arrested in this city on a charge of obtaining money under false pretenses.

It has developed that several citizens of this city and vicinity were caught for various amounts, which aggregate nearly $6,000. Buck-Wyatt & Co. have been doing a grain business in Mexico for several months, and recently they ceased operations, owing several clients, who immediately complained.

William Buck arrived here from St. Louis Saturday and was arrested. The men demanded bail and bond for the two was fixed at $8,000. The attorneys for the defendant demurred and habeas corpus proceedings were instituted.

The case was taken before Judge Barnett, of the circuit court, which is in session here, and the bond was lowered to $4,000, which was furnished.

The defendants, with their attorney, departed for St. Louis Saturday afternoon and will appear here on July 11, the date set for the preliminary hearing before Squire Bass.

STORY OF "A HEADLINE"

THE MAN WHO WROTE WORDS, "JERKED TO JESUS," FOR CHICAGO TIMES.

NOW ON ST. LOUIS POST-DISPATCH

Frank H. Brooks, Once a Kansas City Reporter, Writes of the Rise and Fall of a Leading Chicago Newspaper.

Frank H. Brooks, 30 or more years ago a writer on the Kansas City Times, a personal friend of the late Major John N. Edwards, but for more than a score of years connected with Chicago newspapers in different capacities, had the following in the Kansas City Independent of Saturday under the caption, "Journalistic Failures; Rise, Decline and Fall of the Chicago Times."

On the last day of May, without previous intimation, the Chicago Chronicle announced its suspension. The reason was concisely stated. It did not pay.

"It was not the first time that such an announcement had been made in Chicago newspaper history. About twenty-five years ago Wilbur F. Storey, owner and editor of the Chicago Times, began the publication of an afternoon edition of the Times. It was called the Telegraph. It was a high class publication. It sold for five cents the copy. The penny afternoon paper was just struggling for position.

Mr. Storey's idea was that there was a field for an afternoon paper, such as he proposed the Telegraph should be. He transferred to the staff of the new venture some of the best talent of the Times. The editorial page was noticeably able. Every department of the new publication was complete.

Mr. Storey had made the Times a great power in the northwest. But it was the power of fear. Such a publication could not live now. To Mr. Storey nothing was sacred. The Times was, to quote a sentence written by Mr. Storey himself in an editorial on the success of the Times, "on the crest of the advancing wave." He entered the afternoon field with the expectation of making the Telegraph a tender of the Times.

The salaries paid on the Telegraph were higher than those paid on any afternoon newspaper in the United States. The circulation was phenomenal from the first issue. While, as has been stated, all departments had high standards, special effort was directed toward making society, art, the drama, music and sporting, special features of the new venture.

The paper was not six months old when Mr. Storey announced in one of his terse and vigorous paragraphs for which he was noted in his time, that the Telegraph was a failure and would not be issued again. In spite of the efforts to make the paper par excellence, in spite of its circulation that had increased daily, the advertisers of the city stood aloof. Mr. Storey had demanded the same rates for business for the Telegraph that were paid to the Times. The advertisers simply refused to go in. Mr. Storey bluntly refused to reduce the rates.

Up to the hour of going to press with the last issue of the Telegraph, no one on the staff had received the least intimation that the last day of the paper was at hand. A majority of the staff was switched back to the Times. Some of the "new talent" that had taken the places of the Times members who had been "advanced" on the Telegraph were discharged.

Ten or twelve years later the Times began to show signs of senility. Mr. Storey's mind was tottering. Singularly constructed paragraphs, in which italics preponderated, appeared day after day. The paragraphs were written by Mr. Storey.

They. The vogue of stenography and typewriting and dictation was not known in Mr. Storey's time.

As an example of the paragraphs which appeared daily, Mr. Storey acknowledged in one issue the receipt of a box of celery from a grower in Kalamazoo, sent to the editor. The construction of this paragraph was in line with that of the country editor who has been made glad by the receipt of a bottle of preserves put up by Mrs. Dash.

The great newspaper which had a circulation in Illinois, Wisconsin, Michigan and Minnesota, and which had established a branch office in London, conducted for a while with ability, and at a great expense, lost its bearings. Mr. Storey became a prisoner in his home. His last days were pitiful. He died an imbecile in 1884.

He left no heirs but his wife, who was a foolish woman. Not long after, she married again. A divorce soon followed. He second husband served a term in state's prison.

The Times lingered a few years. It passed from a receiver's hands into the hands of politicians, and finally was consolidated with another morning newspaper. The name which had been such a power in the northwest was considered fatal, and soon after the consolidation it was eliminated. The people of Chicago were glad when the name disappeared.

The building which Mr. Storey had erected as the home of the Times, and which in its day was the complete newspaper office and plant in the United States, was deserted after the consolidation of Storey's creation and for a long time it stood unoccupied in a busy section of the city, and had a ghastly appearance. Storey and his papers are today nothing but unfragrant memories.

It is rather singular, but it is no reflection upon the high character and ability of the editor of the Chronicle which has just closed its doors, that he was one of Mr. Storey's most trusted employees. (The editor referred to is H. W. Seymour, who today became editor of the St. Louis Post-Dispatch.—Ed.)

When Mr. Storey had a mania for sensational headlines in the Times there appeared one day, over a dispatch announcing the hanging of several negroes in the south, a headline which has been talked about all over the country ever since—"Jerked to Jesus." Mr. Storey declared it was the best headline ever written. The author of it was the man who a few days ago announced the suspension of the Chicago Chronicle. It is due to him to say that long ago he declared he was sorry he ever wrote it. But it suited Storey.

The Sedalia Chautauqua.

You owe it to yourself to get all the good possible out of the Sedalia Chautauqua. There is just one way to do this, buy season tickets and take in the entire session. Opportunities of this kind to hear the best and brightest orators, statesmen, educators, lecturers, musicians and entertainers come but seldom, and the price is within the reach of all the poorest citizen. A season ticket costs you about 5c per session—it's a marvel of cheapness. Buy season tickets for your children—the Chautauqua may prove the turning point of their lives.

HOW SOME MEN SUCCEED.

Remarkable Case of Penuriousness Told by Florist.

A florist in the outskirts of the city has come across what he considers the meanest man in all New York. "He recently bought a fine summer home and estate about a half mile from my nursery," said the florist. "A few weeks ago he was entertaining some old friends, and showing them around the neighborhood. In the course of their peregrinations he brought them to my flower patch, on which I have a number of large glass-houses. Wishing to display his wealth by purchasing something, he stopped at a cucumber frame and asked me the price of various specimens of that vegetable. I pointed a large one out to him at 25 cents, another at 15 cents, and so on; but Mr. Suddenwealth would have none of them. His eye fell on a particularly tiny specimen. 'How much?' he asked, pointing to it. I told him five cents. Mr. Croesus brought out a $50 bill. I couldn't change it just then, so I told him he could pay later. That suited him fine. Just as I was about to pull the cucumber he requested me to leave it where it was, as he would send his man for it in the evening. He went away smiling, and sent his coachman to the nursery at the end of a week, by which time, of course, the tiny cucumber had lengthened into a large and brilliant vegetable! What's more he's forgotten to divvy up the nickel!"

LOOKING FOR FREE ADVICE.

People of Both Sexes Seek to Evade Payment of Doctors' Bills.

Every doctor has had unpleasant experiences of the economical minded person who takes advantage of a casual meeting at the dinner table or elsewhere to importune him for counsel as to his ailments. It is not always easy to get rid of these pests. Abernethy was, as we know, equal to the occasion when a wealthy alderman whom he met at a friend's house recited his catalogue of woes, ending up with the question: "What should I take?" The reply was: "Take advice." A French doctor recently rid himself in an equally ingenious manner of a patient who sought to impose on his good nature. He was accosted one afternoon on a crowded boulevard by a lady notorious for this practice. She at once began to tell of her afflictions, making particular complaint of pain in her hypogastric region. To which the doctor gravely replied: "My dear madam, I must examine you. Be good enough to take off your things!"

"What is that proverb about a fool and his money?" queried the very young man. "A fool and his money," answered the sage of Sageville, "soon get on opposite sides of the market."

Little, Shabby Old Pop Furnished Surprise for "Sport" Who Had Nothing but His Thousand-Dollar Bill.

There is a story current in those circles wherein betting on horse races is spoken of freely and admitted without a blush, that concerns an old sport, a young sport and $1,000 bill, says the New York Sun.

It seems that some months ago the horses were not running well, or it took an ax to get into a poolroom or something of that kind, and Young Sport was hard up. There was among his acquaintances a little old man, commonly called Pop, who was always shabby and insignificant in appearance, but who, somehow, usually had the faculty of having a 20 in his pocket.

He had one on the day when Young Sport touched him with his hard-luck story, and the 20 changed hands. On several occasions thereafter Pop got unobtrusively in the way of Young Sport, but there was nothing doing.

Pop never asked questions, simple old soul; he just waited. Bennings opened up, and Jimlico, and Aqueduct, but Young Sport persistently guessed wrong, and Pop, if all is to be believed, despaired of ever seeing his 20 again.

Thus ends the prologue, and the first act opens of a recent evening in a dispensary of liquid recuperators on the Great White Way. Enter Young Sport, who approaches the chief dispenser, an acquaintance, with a sheepish and yet highly contented smile.

"Say is my face good for a ball? You see, it's this way," he hastens to add before the chief dispenser can commit the break of turning him down. "I hit the races lucky to-day—simply couldn't lose, and when I cashed in I took the bulk of my winnings in this form, see?" and he displays a $1,000 bill.

"The rest of it was enough, I thought, to carry me over till to-morrow, but I'll be hanged if I haven't run dry. Here I am with $1,000 and can't buy a drink, because it's too late to get this thing changed and it's not to be expected that there'd be all this money in any till on the Way."

The dispenser is so impressed that he forgets the all-night bank where change might be had, asks the victim of too much prosperity to indicate his prescription and sets forth the vials accordingly. Young Sport helps himself with many a grateful compliment to the dispenser's discriminating judgment, promises to pay to-morrow and departs to be discovered shortly afterward the central figure in a group of horse lovers at the Hoffman house.

Thither hurries shabby Pop after happening to overhear the aforementioned chief dispenser telling of the man and naming him who flashed a $1,000 bill before his dazzling eyes. Pop insinuates himself into the group of horse lovers and looks hopefully up at the central figure. He doesn't say a word, Pop doesn't, but just looks right appealing like.

"It comes right down to this," Young Sport is saying oracularly, "if you want to beat the races you must have a good, all-round knowledge of horse-flesh."

Just then he catches sight of shabby old Pop and remembers that there is a man he wants to see farther uptown. The horse lovers have lots of questions to ask, but none so much to the point as that of shabby Pop, who throws reserve to the winds and says: "Say, how about that 20 I lent you last November?"

"That's all right," replies Young Sport, trying to mask his embarrassment under a guise of easy confidence. "Pay you to-morrow."

"But to-morrow may not come," says Pop. "I don't know; something might happen. I'd rather have that 20 now. I hear you hit it lucky to-day."

"So I did, but I've nothing with me but a $1,000 bill," Young Sport answers, and to relieve the old man's anxiety he displays the bill.

Then, "I can change it," pipes up Pop, and he produces a huge wad of fifties, twenties, tens and fives from his trousers pocket and proceeds to count out $980.

They say that Young Sport had the grace to invite Pop to the bar as he ruefully admitted that $980 in small bills was as good as blown in.

Alaska Needs Railroads.

The thing that is holding back Alaskan mining and trade is the inadequate railroad facilities of the country—an insuperable obstacle to trade beyond the merest necessities of existence.

At the present time there is only one railroad that penetrates to the interior of Alaska and of that only 30 miles are on American soil. This road runs from Skagway, at the head of Lynn canal, and connects the tide-water with the Yukon river. Except during the four months that navigation is open—from June to October—this railroad controls the trade of the Yukon valley. It is as if the only railroad between the Atlantic and the Mississippi were from Albany to Troy.—System.

Selection.

"A great deal depends on the manner in which a man selects his friends," said the wise politician.

"Yes," answered Senator Sorghum; "but the things you attack are what keep the public interested. The most important point is the selection of enemies."

The Queerest Policemen.

"The strangest policemen in the world are in Cape Town, South Africa," said a man who had traveled in the Dark Continent. "They are the Kaffir negroes. They wear a uniform similar to that of an English soldier, but instead of a club and a revolver they carry a long spear with a red tassel near the point and a short stick which has a heavy brass ball on the end and is attached to the policeman's belt by a cord some 60 feet long. They throw the ball and stick and the cord winds around the prisoner like a ranchman's lariat and prevents him from walking. They are not allowed to carry firearms, and only make an arrest when ordered by their white officers to do so, but if they are ever sent for a man he had better go without question, for he either goes to jail or the hospital if he resists."

Dogs and Their Treatment.

Columbus has a new dog catcher. It is hoped that he is a humane man and does not enter upon his duties with a hatred of dogs. Some people have an idea that a dog is always to be assailed like a snake. It is in that spirit that a boy throws a stone at a dog going down the street, and harrasing nobody. "A dog's life" is a common phrase, which indicates that every man's hand is against it. This is the fate of man's most faithful companion, the most intelligent animal outside of the pale of humanity. Let us always remember that sympathy for a brute accompanies sympathy for a fellow-mortal. You can risk your fortune on that proposition. — Ohio State Journal.

The Art of Walking.

To walk gracefully is an art, one which is seldom the accomplishment of the American woman. The head should be kept well back, and the whole weight of the body should rest on each foot in turn. Set the foot down squarely, striking the ball of the foot first. Keep the chin drawn back well horizontally, which will cause the chest to be lifted, and thus insure deep breathing. Practice walking indoors with a book on the head and the instructions will be easily understood.

Tactful.

"How was it Dr. Knowit got such a big fee from Talkative?" "Because when he was called to attend Mrs. Talkative for a slight nervous trouble he told her she had an acute attack of inflammatory verbirosity." "Well," "And recommended absolute quiet as the only means of averting paroxysms of cacaothes loquendi. She's scared dumb."

BAD STATE OF AFFAIRS

It is Alleged to Exist in Stone County, Missouri.

Aurora, Mo., July 1.—Former County Treasurer W. L. Long, of Stone county, who resigned recently, after paying a shortage of nearly $2,000, was placed under arrest Saturday by the direction of Circuit Judge Moore, after the prosecuting attorney had protested against the act, claiming that it would retard the investigation.

It was expected that another former treasurer would also be arrested. The situation in the county affairs of Stone county has reached a critical point in that much bad blood has developed between the two conflicting parties.

That sensational developments are near at hand, involving others now in office, is known. That a condition exists in that county, probably never before equaled in any county in Missouri, is freely admitted by Prosecuting attorney W. E. Renfro.

The Cause of Many Sudden Deaths.

There is a disease prevailing in this country most dangerous because so deceptive. Many sudden deaths are caused by it—heart disease, pneumonia, heart failure or apoplexy are often the result of kidney disease. If kidney trouble is allowed to advance the kidney-poisoned blood will attack the vital organs, causing catarrh of the bladder, or the kidneys themselves break down and waste away cell by cell. Bladder troubles almost always result from a derangement of the kidneys and a cure is obtained quickest by a proper treatment of the kidneys. If you are feeling badly you can make no mistake by taking Dr. Kilmer's Swamp-Root, the great kidney, liver and bladder remedy. It corrects inability to hold urine and scalding pain in passing it, and overcomes that unpleasant necessity of being compelled to go often through the day, and to get up many times during the night. The mild and the extraordinary effect of Swamp-Root is soon realized. It stands the highest for its wonderful cures of the most distressing cases. Swamp-Root is pleasant to take and is sold by all druggists in fifty-cent and one-dollar size bottles. You may have a sample bottle of this wonderful new discovery and a book that tells all about it, both sent free by mail. Address, Dr. Kilmer & Co., Binghamton, N. Y. When writing mention reading this generous offer in this paper. Don't make any mistake, but remember the name, Swamp-Root, Dr. Kilmer's Swamp-Root, and the address, Binghamton, N. HARRY ORCHARD'S TALE

HE RESUMES THE CONFESSION OF HIS MANY HORRIBLE CRIMES.

HE KILLED PRESIDENT MCKINLEY

Also Murdered Mrs. Maybrick's Husband, Kidnaped Charlie Ross and Dealt Death Blow to Billy Patterson.

Here is a "take-off," if it may so be called, on the noted Haywood murder case, it being an alleged telegram from Bushwa, Idaho, to the Kansas City Independent of June 29:

Harry Orchard again took the stand this morning, and resumed the confession that is stamping him as one of the greatest men of the age.

"As the jury may remember," continued Orchard in his cheerful tone, "I had finished killing eleven hundred and four men at the close of testimony last night. Well, after leaving the mining district, I went to Russia at Haywood's request, and threw the bomb that killed Pobiedonostef. I also threw several other bombs, killing five or six generals, and one afternoon, when there was nothing doing around St. Petersburg, I ran over in Finland and killed the governor there. Probably you saw about it in the papers. I left Russia finally, failing to get a good whack at the czar, and shot Empress Elizabeth in Switzerland. Luccheni was arrested for the crime, but I really did it. It was also my hand that struck down King Humbert. Returning to America, I reached over Czolgosz's shoulder, and shot President McKinley. Single killings palled on me about this time, and, anyway, Haywood and Moyer were very bitter at me for not doing more to earn my $150 a week. So I wrecked a train in California, killing seven hundred people, and then blew up a mine in Nevada, destroying fifty men. Every body thought the explosion was an accident, but not so. I done it."

There was no doubting the effect of Orchard's story on the jury. Two men laid down their novels, and the foreman even laid by his pocket volume of Baron Munchausen.

"While I am about it," continued Harry, thanking Judge Wood for a glass of wine with which to wet his lips, "I may as well confess some other crimes. It was really me that killed Florence Maybrick's husband, and me that kidnaped Charley Ross. I also hit Billy Patterson."

Questioned by Senator Borah as to the reason for his change of heart, the brave witness answered readily, tears streaming down his cheeks:

"I was converted by the Pinkertons," he said. "I want to give those noble men all the credit for my salvation. They came in and sat by me every night, and talked so beautifully about the Bible that I commenced to realize my wickedness. They sang hymns to me, and taught me prayers. Oh, they were like angels in their beauty."

Judge Wood and Senator Borah broke down at this point and cried with the witness, putting their arms around him. The unspeakable Darrow tried to counteract the effect of the telling scenes by sneering that the Pinkertons ought to try their hand on Borah, as his confession might clear up the land frauds very materially.

Judge Wood grew white with anger, and would have sent Darrow to jail had it not been for the magnanimous conduct of Senator Borah, who asked him to take no notice of the slur.

In this connection it may be well to deny the report that Judge Wood and Senator Borah gave a dinner last night in honor of Orchard. The report is a lie out of whole cloth. A dinner will be given to Orchard, it is true, but not until the trial is over.

TO CLEAR HIS WAR RECORD

A Veteran Was Trudging When Run Down and Killed.

Chillicothe, Ohio, July 1.—Silas Wyatt, aged 65, was killed by the northbound Norfolk and Western flyer on the Paint Creek bridge.

He carried a paper from the pension department notifying him that it had been learned that he deserted from the Seventh West Virginia infantry when drafted the second time, and therefore his pension would be discontinued.

The letter was received in Ashley, Mo., June 27, and Wyatt was evidently making his way to West Virginia to secure evidence to clear his war record. He had been granted thirty days' time in which to prove that he did not desert.

Insanity.

It has commonly been said that lunacy was increasing in the modern world. But Mr. Noel Humphreys in his paper read before the Statistical society proclaims the theory that lunacy is not increasing at all. According to his ingenious statement the apparent increase is due not to the growth of lunacy, but to the growth of the care of lunacy. To put the matter shortly, he holds that it is not so much that there are more madmen, but that there are more mad doctors.

Substantially, his case appears very sound. There can be little doubt that many men are now put in asylums who would in previous ages have been allowed to wander in the meadows or to play about the streets. There can be little doubt that many men are now called insane who in other times would merely have been called wicked; and it is possible that many are now called madmen who in other times would merely have been called saints.

The only question is whether this scientific harvest of all the lunatics alive is so great an improvement as it looks. There can be no doubt that the wise men have come from all the ends of the earth to capture the village idiot, who once danced without having bricks thrown at him.

Preparing for It.

Prof. M. I. Pupin, the famous electrical expert, told at the dedicatory banquet of the new woman's club the Colony, in New York, an appropriate story.

"The excellence of this repast," he said, "brings to my mind a story about a man whose repasts were by no means excellent."

"This man lived in my native town of Idvor, and he was noted for his parsimony. Let us call him Mr. Smith."

"There was an old major in Idvor who said to his valet one evening:

"Go and tell the cook to get me ready a chop and a poached egg."

"Pardon me, major," said the valet, "but have you forgotten that you are dining with Mr. Smith to-night?"

"The major frowned.

"Yes," he said, "I had forgotten it. Tell the cook to make it two chops and two poached eggs."

The Modern Chaperon.

There are signs of the return of the chaperon. The younger generation has tried jumping into the social swim all alone—without the comfort of the rope—and she has sometimes found herself in deep water and difficulties. But the chaperon of old is no longer—old.

We have developed the married woman who has attained the art of preserving youth. She is no longer the dragon with fearsome side curls and truculent view of any insistent young man. She is simply the companion on the shore who holds a rope attached to the novice who is in for her first swim!

The new chaperon pays out the rope pretty freely, and is generally looking the other way. But there she is on the bank. She is a married woman, the girl can appeal, just as a man gives the address of his banker when questions are asked as to ability to pay rent. Rope, lifebelt—such is the chaperon.

Two Ways of "Setting."

A pupil in a school near Chatham square, New York city, thus defined the word spine: "A spine is a long, limber bone; your head sets on one end, and you set on the other."

"NAN" IS GOING THE PAGE

CHORUS GIRL TRIED FOR MURDER MAKING THINGS HUM IN PITTSBURG.

HUSBAND DYING IN LOS ANGELES

Wife Started for the Pacific Coast to Visit Him, but Stopped Off in Pittsburg to Have a Jolly Good Time.

Pittsburg, Pa., July 1.—Nan Patterson, erstwhile chorus girl, twice tried for the murder of Caesar Young, is in Pittsburg, cutting a very wide swath, while her husband, Leon Martin, to whom she was twice married, is in Los Angeles, Cal., almost at the point of death. No matter how good Nan's intentions are, it seems impossible for her to keep out of the lime-light.

Nearly a year ago Nan and her husband came to Pittsburg, and for several months the former chorus girl led a quiet life. Martin obtained a good position as clerk at the Duquesne hotel and was prosperous. Then there came reports from various cafes about town of Nan's presence in Pittsburg and of some wild midnight suppers in which she participated.

About three months ago Martin's health began to fail. Never of very robust health, the smoke and grime of Pittsburg affected his lungs and his physician ordered him to go west as the only means of saving his life.

Martin went alone to Los Angeles, where he has since been working in a hotel. But the change in climate did not bring about the expected improvement in his health, and within the past two weeks he has been rapidly declining. A few days ago his doctor told him he could not live.

When Martin went west, Nan remained here for a short while, and then went to her old home in Washington and later to Philadelphia.

When Martin discovered that his condition was serious, he sent for his wife to come to him at once. Nan started, but got only as far as Pittsburg.

Here she fell in with some of her former companions, and for the past week she has been cutting a wide swath. She has been making her headquarters at a roadhouse just outside the city, and reports from the resort during the past few days indicate that Nan is reveling in the life that she led prior to the tragedy which came so near sending her to the electric chair.

"ADDY" WAS QUITE SPEEDY

Within Two Hours Filed Answer to Husband's Divorce Suit.

Marion, Ohio, July 1.—Mrs. Adda M. Bent, of La Rue, broke all local divorce records here when she filed an answer and cross-petition for divorce.

She first sent an emissary to the courthouse with the plea that, if her husband had not yet sued for divorce, she loved him still and sought a reconciliation.

Learning that her husband's petition had just been filed she employed a lawyer and surprised the clerk with her answer and cross-petition for divorce and alimony before the entry of her husband's suit had scarcely been made and the papers put away.

ARE MOMENTS OF ANXIETY.

Those Following Winning of Derby and Reasons Why.

The anxiety of owners of race horses competing in the Derby do not immediately end as the horses pass the judges. The fatal "objection" may snatch the laurels from the victor. The possibility discovered itself over Caractacus' race. The owner had striven in vain to get a jockey of repute. His offer of a life annuity of £100 a year to Gostley in case of success had been declined. A stable boy named Parsons had eventually to be trusted, and, to the surprise of the learned, he got the horse home, winning by a neck. Going to scale, the lad could not draw the weight. In breathless silence the bride was sent for and that just enabled him to balance the scale. But now Lord Stamford appeared to object that only his own horse and two others had gone the full course. The winner and the rest were already past the starting post when the flag fell. Admiral Rous looked at his watch. "Twenty minutes," he said. "An objection to hold good must be lodged within a quarter of an hour. And so the stable boy's win passed into the records, but the owner of Caractacus declared that not for £1,000 a moment would he again endure the agony of that short period following the race.—London Saturday Review.

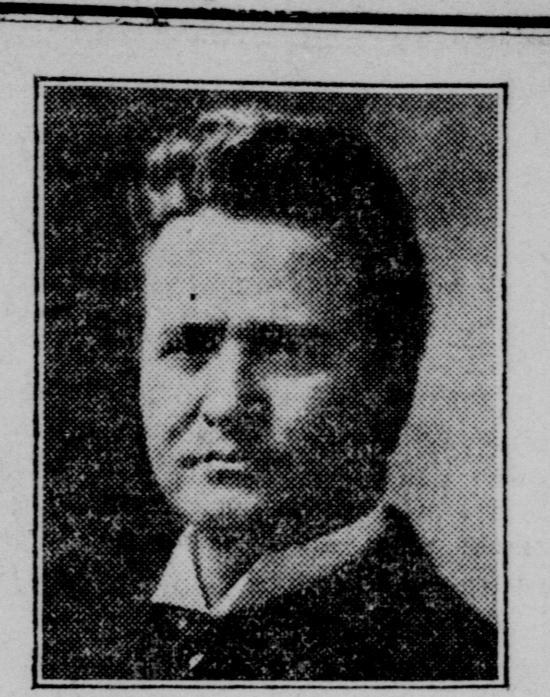

ANIMALS FIGHT IN SHACK.

Connecticut Man and His Watchdog Had Lively Session.
From Bristol's woods, in Southern Prospect, a village near Waterbury, Conn., a wildcat pursued a big deer until from exhaustion it fell through the roof of the side hill hen shack of Edson Black. Guinea fowls set up a great commotion, and with the deer's desperate struggles for liberty, cooped up in a shack 15x12, with nearly 80 fowls, there was such a racket that a trusty watchdog awoke Black. He went to the henhouse to find 32 fowls trampled to death, every pane of glass and all the roosts broken and the deer dying of a broken neck. Its flanks were lacerated from the claws of the wildcat, tracks of which were in the coop, where it remained until frightened away by the approach of Black.

MAN IS LOSING HIS MIND

THOMAS VANEST, WHO ONE WEEK AGO WAS WHITE-CAAPPED IN INDIANA.

VICTIM IS NOW A NERVOUS WRECK

Five of the Alleged Participants Have Been Arrested and a Clew Obtained to the Remaining Four.

Columbus, Ind., July 1.—The physician attending Thomas Vanest, who was whitecapped Sunday night, June 23d, said today that his patient was a nervous wreck and that his mind was becoming affected from the shock of the assault.

Governor Hanley and Attorney General Bingham have taken up the investigation and a new clew was discovered today which is believed to be a valuable one.

It was learned that on the afternoon preceding the whitecapping four strangers arrived at Helmsburg on the Abe Martin special over the Indianapolis Southern road, and were driven to Nashville, where they took supper at a hotel, but refused to register.

They refused to divulge their names and would hold no conversation with any one. After supper they hired two carriages, which they did not enter until after passing beyond the limits of the town.

Before daylight on the night of the whitecapping the carriages were returned to the barn and the strangers left town.

Vanest has identified the carriages as the ones in which the whitecappers went to his home.

These four strangers with the five men already arrested are thought to complete the list of nine that Vanest says assaulted him.

BISHOP HAD READY EXCUSE.

At Least as Good as Many Made for Divorce Laws.

Dr. Edward Everett Hale, at the divorce reform congress in Washington, said of certain divorce laws: "The apologies put forward for these laws remind me of the apology that a gourmet bishop once made during Lent. The bishop happened to sit at dinner beside an irreverent young woman. He ate his oysters, and then, with flashing eyes, a heightened color and every indication of enjoyment, he fell to upon a plate of rich turtle soup. The young woman, watching the bishop swallow this costly food, could not restrain a sneer. 'I thought,' she said, 'that you fasted during Lent, bishop?' The bishop put down his spoon and allowed his face to become pensive. 'Ah, I do fast in Lent,' he said, 'subsist chiefly on fish.' He swallowed a lump of meat worth about half a dollar. 'Turtle,' he added, 'is a kind of fish.'"

"STALLED" IN THE AIR

Youthful Aeronaut Had An Exciting Experience in Columbus.

Columbus, O., July 1.—Cromwell Dixon, 11 years old, the youngest aeronaut in the world, got stalled 2,900 feet above the ground Saturday night, and, after adjusting his sky-cycle, made a thrilling descent. Thousands of persons witnessed his feat and applauded him heartily when he landed safely.

Young Dixon started unannounced from the driving park, and the upward flight was a success, the cycle shooting skywards until it and its navigator appeared as a tiny dark spot. When the machine had reached 2,900 feet the youthful aeronaut discovered that he would be unable to descend, as his ballast was too light. Leaving his saddle he slowly and carefully climbed along the light frame of the cycle until he reached the end and let out enough gas to give the airship the proper ballast.

That done, he tied the end of the bag, crawled back into the saddle and pedaled for dear life.

Slowly he descended and soon he heard the shouts from thousands of throats and then he knew he was near earth. He kept on pedaling until he landed safely a short distance from where he had started.

CASE WAS REVERSED

Justices Forgot to Order Mrs. Ella Riley's Release.

Indianapolis, Ind., July 1.—Through an oversight on the part of the state supreme court, Mrs. Ella L. Riley, serving a term in the woman's prison on the charge of being an accessory before the fact to the false acknowledgment of a deed, has had no official information that her case has been reversed. She remains an inmate of the prison. The court rendered the decision reversing the case last Tuesday, but neglected to order the release of Mrs. Riley.

Justice Gillette wrote the opinion reversing Mrs. Riley's case. His attention was called to the court's oversight. Although the supreme court has adjourned for the summer vacation, Judge Gillette said that the necessary order in Mrs. Riley's case would be issued.

Just how long Mrs. Riley would have had to wait for official information concerning her case, had not the attention of the justice been called to the matter, is hard to conjecture.

JOKE THAT TWO COULD PLAY.

Farmer Evened Up Accounts with Young Would-Be Wit.

Young Stevenson was on his way north to spend the week end with his parents, and felt in a particularly jovial mood. The train in which he was traveling had stopped at a small village. As a farmer who was sauntering up and down the platform came opposite Stevens's compartment he was asked by the youth if he knew that the Duke of Devonshire was on the train. Immediately the man showed great interest, and said: "No! Is he?" "I think he is not," answered Stevens. "I only asked you if you knew that he was." The farmer said nothing, but continued his walk on the platform. As he came opposite the window again he remarked that this town has been experiencing some excitement. "What is the matter?" asked Stevens. "The authorities wouldn't let some folks bury a woman," replied the farmer. "What was the reason for refusing?" "She wasn't dead," was the laconic reply. And then he strolled away, leaving young Stevens biting his lip.—Judge's Library.

Lightning Kills Two Farmers.

Nevada, Mo., July 1.—Two farmers, James Long and William Metz, were killed by lightning near Harwood, fifteen miles northeast of this city, Saturday afternoon. They were at work in the wheat field and were close to a binding machine when the fatal clap came, the metal of the machine being supposed to have attracted the electric fluid. Three of the horses hitched to the binder were also killed.

The Couple Have a Son 17 Years Old and the Defendant is Alleged to Be Worth Not Less Than $200,000.

Muncie, Ind., July 1.—Muncie society circles are stirred because of the filing of a suit for divorce by Mrs. Harriet Anthony against Charles H. Anthony, a wealthy horseman and business man.

Mrs. Anthony bears the reputation of being the best dressed woman in Eastern Indiana, her gowns for a single season costing thousands of dollars. She also is wealthy in her own right, and is sole heir to the large estate of her father, Dr. Harvey Mitchell.

In her suit Mrs. Anthony makes charges of ill treatment, and asks for $75,000 cash alimony and the custody of her son, who is 17 years of age. She also asks for an allowance of $1,000 with which to pay the costs of her suit.

Mr. and Mrs. Anthony have been married twenty-one years. Mrs. Anthony avers that within a few years after their marriage he became interested in blooded horses, lost his love for her, and "became sordid and ill tempered," sometimes going so far as to strike her.

She alleges that for six years he has maintained apartments in the Anthony building, which he owns, and seldom has lived at home. She says he is worth $200,000, and has a net income of $10,000 a year.

Anthony is 49 years of age, and his wife is several years younger. He is president of the Delaware County Fair association and is a member of the board of directors of the State Fair association.

WHISTLER'S COCK FIGHT YARN.

Disguised Eagle Fitted by Yankee Sailors Against British Champions.

Whistler used to take delight in telling a story of some American sailors who were at a cockfight in a seaport town in England, when one of them remarked to the owner of the champion:

"We've got an American cock on board that can whip any bird here."

"Go fetch 'im on," said the Englishman, "chuck 'im in and see. If 'e ticks one bird we 'ave plenty more to throw in that can lick hazy blowed H-American bird you can fetch 'ere."

"All right; we'll bring one," said the sailors.

When they got aboard they rigged up an American eagle. After their own manner they painted, trimmed, spliced, and reefed fore and aft, transforming the eagle to a cock. When ready they went ashore, and at the pit chuckled in their new gamecock, which, overcome by surprise, promptly backed close to the wall.

"Now bring on your birds," yelled the sailors.

A strutting cock was thrown into the pit, and was another surprise to the poor dismantled eagle. He backed closer and closer to the wall, wondering what would happen next.

The cock walked three times majestically around the circle, cuffling at his strange opponent, the eagle pitifully abashed and bedrabbled, crouching lower and lower, and looking around and above him for an explanation of what it all meant, while the crowd were yelling madly for the English fighter.

The eagle made himself smaller and smaller, but at last, finding that he could get back no further, and thinking that something was expected of him, stretched out his long claws as the cock dashed at him again and took his opponent by the neck.

Here Whistler ended, with an imitation by motions of what the eagle did. He stretched out his arm, shaped his hand like a claw (by this time it looked like a real one), drew it to his mouth, and, with one bite, pulled off the head, as he thought an eagle might do it. Then he looked blandly about the room, as the eagle had done, at the astonished crowd and said:

"Now bring on your other birds."—Century Magazine.

Women played an important part in the early history of Japan. To a woman, the Empress Jingu, belongs the glory of the first conquest made by Japan, that of Korea, A. D., 201. "Dressed as a man, she led her fleet over the unknown waters, across which she alone believed a country lay to the westward. "If we succeed," she said to her chiefs, "the glory will all be yours. I will be responsible for the infamy of a possible defeat." The Koreans laid their wealth at the feet of the conquerors and the king swore that so long as the stars shone and water ran down hill Korea should be faithful to Japan. This achievement of the empress gave rise to the boast of the Japanese. "The arms of Japan shine beyond the seas." But the most important part of her victory was the introduction of Buddhism from Korea, as well as Asiatic art, science, medicine and literature. Jingu, however, was never actually proclaimed head of the empire. The first female ruler was Suiko, and since her time eight empresses have governed Japan, some of them with great wisdom.

For the Stay-At-Homes

To those who through time, or inclination, are to remain in Sedalia, while others are enjoying their vacation tours, we have arranged

A Trip to Japan Friday, July 5th

It's going to be a decidedly novel event, particularly for younger folk. We want the children to be here.

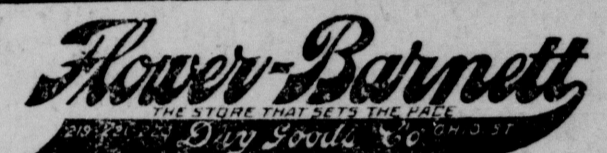

Remember the Date.

We Sail at 8 a. m.

After the Holiday, we realize that we will have to make exceptional offerings to induce you to shop at all.

We want this July to be the greatest we've known, and when we want a thing very much we usually make such preparations as will warrant our hoping to get it. We realize that there is going to be a great deal of dry goods business in July—others are going to bid for that business. We are going to offer values in competition with them, and as our prices will be lower and our qualities higher, we ought to have the business.

Our method of turning the dulllest month in the year into the busiest.

Rodney's Feathered Ally.

April 12 is the anniversary of Rodney's timely but much controverted victory over De Cresse, in which he received assistance from an unexpected ally. While the new manoeuvre of "breaking up the line"—really invented by Capt. Douglas—was being executed, a shot shattered the hencock and a little bantam cock escaped into the rigging. From this coign of vantage, whenever the Glorieux fired his broadside into the Formidable, he would hurl back a prolonged crow of defiance at the Frenchman. This "produced mighty merriment among the seamen, and inspired them with a proper spirit for the business." As a reward for his public services, the plucky little bird was reprieved from the cook, and passed the rest of his days ashore as a petted pensioner.

Satisfying Congregation's Curiosity.

Rev. C. N. Wright, Wardie Vicarage, Rochdale, for a personal reminiscence, writes: "In my third living there was a very crowded congregation the first morning I officiated. The parishioners were evidently curious as to the build, color of hair, etc., of their new vicar. As a matter of fact I was, though a young man, very bald. A little thought would have caused me to make my first appearance on any morning but the eighth, but it was the eighth, and in the Psalms, which were read and sung, I had to say: "My sins are more in number than the hairs of my head."—London Globe.

In a German Law Court.

A German law court was the scene lately of an amusing incident. The magistrate, a tiresome and long-winded person, was deciding a small case in which the plaintiff claimed damages for abuse. "To call a man a 'pig' or a 'dog,'" ruled the judge, "is certainly an insult; but to say that he is a 'pig-dog' is inoffensive, for no such animal exists." The plaintiff glared at the bench. "Schwein-hund!" he remarked with bitter emphasis.—T. P.'s Weekly.

More Than One.

"The average woman," said Grumbell, "has but one idea, and that's dress." "Hub!" snorted Marryat, "my wife usually has at least a dozen ideas, and they're dresses."—The Catholic Standard and Times.

Good to Remember.

Heart Strength

Heart strength, or Heart Weakness, means Nerve strength, or Nerve Weakness—nothing more. Positively, not one weak heart in a hundred is, in itself, actually diseased. It is almost always a hidden tiny little nerve that really is all at fault. This obscure nerve—the Cardiac, or Heart Nerve—simply needs, and must have, more power, more strength, more controlling, more governing strength. Without that the heart must continue to fail, and the stomach and kidneys also have these same controlling nerves.

This clearly explains why, as a medicine, Dr. Shoop's Restorative has in the past done so much for weak and ailing hearts. Dr. Shoop first sought the cause of all this trouble, realizing, of course, that the heart disease, Dr. Shoop's Restorative, is a popular prescription—is alone directed to these weak and wasting nerve centers. It builds up the heart; it opens real, genuine heart help. If you would have strong hearts, strong digestion, strengthen these nerves—re-establish them as needed, with

A SWIMMER THROUGH A PIPE

The Wall of a Swimming Pool Collapsed in St. Louis.

St. Louis, July 1.—Driven by a pressure of 100,000 gallons of water, Joseph Dewitt, a boy, was swept from the basin of a swimming pool in Greenwood Saturday, when a retaining wall of the pool collapsed, and was carried 150 feet through a drain into the river Despres, and caught upon the bank, bleeding and exhausted.

While a number of boys were in the pool a retaining wall at the deepest section suddenly collapsed. Dewitt was immediately under the wall, and, seeing his danger, dived to the bottom.

The breaking wall opened the drain and he was swept through. Almost drowned, and the skin torn from his back in shreds by the grating particles of cement driven by the force of water, he was carried through the drain into the river and his body cast upon the bank. He will recover from his injuries. A number of other boys in the pool escaped injury.

DIED, AGED 105 YEARS

Cancer Caused the Death of "Grandma" Austin.

Vermontville, Mich., July 1.—"Grandma" Sarah Kark Austin, of this place, is dead with cancer. She was born in the New Barbadoes settlement of New Jersey, March 22, 1803, and was therefore in her one hundred and fifth year. Sarah Kark's father was one of the early shipbuilders.

He immigrated to Ohio early in the century. "Grandma" Austin, with hearing but slightly impaired, eyesight as good as that of a child of 10 years and a well-trained memory, could recall the events of her early life which seemed like fairy tales to the children and youth of today.

She did much light housework after she had passed the century mark and until the cancer which caused her death sapped her energies.

WON A ST. JOSEPH GIRL

BUT A HOAX OF WHICH HE WAS THE VICTIM MADE HIM VERY ILL.

THE BRIDE WAS A MISS COOPER

Story of a Chilly Telegram and How It Came to Be Sent Reads Like New "Lady or the Tiger" Problem.

"Don't come. Will write particulars," read the telegram and it was signed "Ethel Cooper," says the St. Joseph News-Press.

When Clover L. Perkins, graduate of Leland Stanford university, received this message at his home in Los Angeles, Cal., it was thought he had inadvertently seized a live wire. He was conscious of a shock, and of very little else. For some minutes, or hours, as he has told his friends since, his faculties were benumbed, and he could not think clearly, for even then he was making arrangements which he hoped would end in the young lady's signing her telegrams, "Mrs. Ethel Vivian Perkins."

For nearly twenty-four hours young Perkins sat to his room. His meals were sent away untasted, much to his mother's alarm. Thinking she detected symptoms of a fever, she called a doctor, but the physician could make very little of the case.

Something on His Mind.

"Your son has something on his mind," said the practitioner. "Something is worrying him."

The mother said she couldn't imagine what it could be. Her son was about to be married to the loveliest girl in the world, she said, and she was quite positive that everything was moving on smoothly. However, she would speak to him about it.

Emerging from her son's room a few minutes later, she handed the doctor the telegram. He read it and whistled.

"Now we're getting down to the seat of the disorder," he said. "There's only one medicine I can prescribe for this, and that's tincture of refutation. The point is to disprove the telegram. I don't believe it's true, because I don't believe any girl that your son would fall in love with would send such a message. Suppose you take him with you and make a little run down to St. Joseph, and see what the young lady herself has to say about it."

The trip was soon arranged, but before it was time to buy the tickets young Perkins' spirits had so far revived that he felt himself able to go alone. The telegram was three days old, and the fatal letter, "with particulars," had not arrived. He began to suspect a hoax.

Perkins Reaches St. Joseph.

He arrived in St. Joseph Thursday morning of this week and registered at the Hotel Metropole. A note sent by messenger boy to the Cooper home elicited such a cordial response that the letters of the original "don't come" telegram ceased to dance before his eyes, and his pulse, instead, began to dance the Fisher's Hornpipe.

Last night he took out a license at the recorder's office, and at 6 o'clock this morning Mr. Clover L. Perkins, of Los Angeles, and Miss Ethel Vivian Cooper, of St. Joseph, were happily married at Christ Episcopal church, the Rev. Edward Henry Eckel, rector, officiating. They left on an early train for California, where they will spend several weeks at the Catalina Islands before establishing themselves in their new home in Los Angeles.

Mrs. Perkins is a charming and accomplished young woman, who lived with her widowed mother, Mrs. Sarah E. Cooper, at 1104 Olive street.

Last October Miss Cooper went to Los Angeles to visit in the home of a relative. She was intending to stay only a month, but she remained all winter. Last spring found her still receiving her mail at Los Angeles.

The Incredible (?) Lady.

A few weeks ago she came home. She was popular with the St. Joseph young men and there was protest when it leaked out that she was to take a husband from far-off California. One night about ten days ago there was a little supper party at the Lotus club. Among the guests was the then Miss Cooper. She was merrily "chaffed" and responded in a vein of assumed indifference. She even dared the young men of the party to send her California admirer a telegram telling him not to come on. Yes, they could sign her name to it. Finally one was written and one of the party left the table ostensibly to telephone it to the telegraph office. He returned and boasted that he had 'phoned it, but the young woman was incredulous. She found that the pretended sender had not been in the telephone booth. Then she taunted the young men. They dared not send it, etc., etc. Finally they took her at her word and did send it. Rumor says that one, at least, hoped that it was a correct representation of the lady's feelings. But still she didn't believe it and so did not send the letter with "particulars." Hence the mental anguish of the young Californian. However, all ended happily and those who know all the particulars have a new "Lady or the Tiger" problem—did she believe the telegram was sent, or did she only pretend not to believe it? To which, like the Stockton problem, there is no answer.

STONING OF A DOG

And Pounding of the Youthful Owner Lead to Killing.

Ashland, Ky., July 1.—John Bryan was shot and instantly killed by Francis Fannin at Triplett's Crossing, five miles from this city. The shooting was the result of the stoning of a dog and the assaulting of David Bryan, the youthful owner, by Dan and Ben Fannin, brothers of Francis.

John Bryan and his son Dan met Francis Fannin and brother, Dan Fannin.

"Well, do you think you can smash my mouth in the way you smashed my young brother's?" asked Dan Bryan, addressing Dan Fannin.

"Think I can," answered Dan, who immediately leaped at Bryan, who also started for him.

Francis Fannin immediately drew a revolver and shot Bryan once in the head and once in the body. Bryan sank in his tracks dead. A widow and five children survive him.

The Fannins escaped, but are pursued by Sheriff Geiger and a posse.

MARJORY

By J. J. Bell.

(Copyright, by Joseph B. Bowles.)

Mr. Paton was very proud of his crocuses. Every morning after breakfast he strolled round his lawn and revelled in his beautiful possessions. Although still on the right side of 40, he was a retired business man. The death of a relative had enabled him to quit an occupation both distasteful and unprofitable. Mr. Paton had no foolish scorn of the tea trade, but he felt no reluctance in leaving it when his relative's legacy allowed him to indulge the two desires of his mind—literary work and gardening. His success in the latter was apparent to anyone who passed Ailsa View; in the former he had not yet made a bid for fame, owing to a strange lack of appreciation on the part of publishers.

James Paton was a confirmed woman hater. Although ten years had passed since his first love had jilted him, James was still unable to see the humor of that event or of anything else in the world.

It was a gay morning in early April, and the bachelor was enjoying his accustomed promenade along the carefully tended walks of his garden.

His whole attention was concentrated on his crocuses, and he strolled round and round, never seeming to raise his eyes from his beautiful lawn. A movement in the shrubbery along the south wall put him on the alert and, stooping down, he picked up a couple of pebbles from the path. In addition to women, Mr. Paton hated cats. The cat had evidently come on business in view, for she was crouching and preparing for a spring. Suddenly Mr. Paton's arm went up and the next moment a nasty thump on the ribs caused the cat to emit a dismal yell and leap for the top of the wall.

"Oh, naughty, naughty!" said some one behind him.

Mr. Paton wheeled round quickly. A little girl, hugging a hideous doll, was standing on the footpath, gazing at him.

"I beg your pardon. Did you speak?" said Mr. Paton. She simply nodded and repeated her observation: "Naughty, naughty!"

Mr. Paton stared at the child for a moment, then continued his stroll. "Poor pussy cat," said the little one. "Naughty man!" she added, as the object of her disapproval moved further away.

Finally, annoyed at his want of attention, she picked up a small handful of gravel and flung it through the railings. The missile did not come near striking Mr. Paton, but it scattered and fell among his crocuses.

"Go away, little girl," he said angrily, "or I'll get the policeman for you."

The child's face puckered, but not grievously. An unbelieving smile parted her lips and made her eyes dance.

"P'ceman for you, naughty man," she returned.

"Oh, run away!" cried the bachelor, impatiently, resuming his promenade. Two minutes later a woful wail came from the railings.

"Lost my dolly, lost my dolly!" said a tearful voice.

Mr. Paton's eyes immediately caught sight of a ragged-looking bundle lying at the foot of the low stone wall.

"Well, it serves you right for being so careless," he said, unkindly. "You'll never see your dolly again," he added, solemnly. "Are you satisfied now?"

A storm of tears was the answer he received.

"Well, well!" he exclaimed hastily. "Now, if I give you back your dolly, will you promise never to come here again?"

The child signified her acquiescence in the arrangement. Whereupon Mr. Paton stepped gingerly over the soft, damp earth and secured the unattractive-looking object of juvenile affection. Alas! Dolly's china head had struck upon a stone and was split in twain.

"Never mind, little girl," whispered Mr. Paton, hurriedly, and, to tell the truth, dreadfully sorry.

"Oh, naughty, bad man! You have killed my dolly!" cried the child, passionately.

"What! D'y'e think I did it? Why, confound it! You're making a mistake. See! Don't go away—"

But the small figure was moving along the railing and pressing her broken joy against her bosom.

The bachelor shut the gate and walked up to the house without so much as a glance at his crocuses.

He shut himself up in his study, but somehow he could not apply himself to his work. In the afternoon he took the train to Glasgow, returning late in the evening.

The next morning he proceeded to make his usual promenade of the garden, but it might have been observed that his eyes turned oftener to the railings than to the lawn. He remained out of doors longer than was his wont, and when he went in at last there was a queer, worried look about his eyes.

After an early dinner he surprised his landlady by telling her that he was going out for the afternoon. It should be mentioned that Mr. Paton had not left his house or garden for years without the express purpose of a visit to the city. But for the time being Mr. Paton was in an extraordinary frame of mind. An old desire had been roused to trouble the peace he had forced upon himself. James Paton had fallen in love again with the woman who jilted him ten years before—who married a man, in the eyes of her parents, immeasurably superior to a struggling tea merchant. James had neither seen nor heard of his faithless sweetheart since the night she took her freedom, and yet, as if her frozen memory had suddenly melted, the old longing took possession of him once more.

Mr. Paton, carrying a brown paper parcel under his arm, set out that afternoon to try to find the little maid whose acquaintance he had made so unhappily the previous morning. He felt that she could not be dwelling far from Ailsa View. So he began operations by making a careful survey of the shore for nearly a quarter of a mile. Being unrewarded, he took the side roads one by one, and then he wandered up the high Fairlie road, till at last, tired and despondent, he betook himself homeward. One thing, however, had happened during his walk. He had made up his mind to burn all his manuscripts.

Ten minutes later he carefully closed the gate of Ailsa View behind him. Suddenly he stopped and looked across the lawn. Here and there his crocuses had been torn up by hand, and the narrow walks were sprinkled with the ruined flowers.

His eye was arrested by something moving among the shrubbery in the direction of the gate. Childish fingers and his own caught the handle almost at the same instant. The man, gray with anger, stood looking down on the child white with fear.

"What's your name?" asked Mr. Paton sternly.

"Marjory," she replied.

"Marjory," he repeated, gently—so gently that the child looked up at him in wonder. "Marjory, I never broke your doll."

"You hurt my pussy," she observed, as a tear crept into each eye.

"I'm sorry, Marjory," he said quite humbly.

"Want me to forgive you?" she whispered.

Mr. Paton replied: "If you please, Marjory."

"I forgive you," she said seriously.

And then she burst into tears.

"Will you come with me to the seat up yonder," asked the bachelor, "and see what's in this parcel? I've been looking for you all afternoon," remarked Mr. Paton, on the way up the walk.

"Want to Kiss You," Said Marjory.

"Saw you goin' out," said Marjory. Then all at once her tears flowed afresh.

"What is it, Marjory? You're not afraid of me now, are you?" he asked.

"W-want you to forgive me," she sobbed.

"I forgive you, Marjory," he returned gently. "But now we must both be happy," he added, cheerfully, as they reached the seat.

"Want to kiss you," said Marjory.

Without a word the bachelor bent down.

"Better now," sighed the child.

"Why you cryin'?" she demanded abruptly.

"Nonsense, Marjory. Come away now and open the parcel. It's a present to you from me, Marjory."

Marjory's shrill voice rent the air with one long shriek of delight over the finest doll that Mr. Paton had been able to procure in Glasgow.

"Want to cuddle you," she whispered.

And he took her up in his arms.

"I say, Marjory," he observed, a little later, "it's about time you were going home."

"What will your daddy say to you for being away so long?" asked Mr. Paton as they went along the road.

"Got no daddy," returned the child.

"Daddy dead long time ago."

"And your mother?"

"Mummy's never angry—sometimes sorry," said Marjory.

The bachelor was about to bid her adieu, but she insisted upon his coming in to see her other dolly, with its head in sticking plaster, and to make friends with her pussy cat. He smiled good-naturedly, and accompanied her up the path to the house.

"Marjory, Marjory, where have you been?" cried a voice, and Mr. Paton looked so queer that the child gazed at him in alarm.

Round a clump of rhododendrons came a woman, at the sight of whom the bachelor stood staring like one suddenly awakened from a dream.

"See my lovely dolly," cried Marjory, dancing up to her mother.

"How do you do, James?" said Marjory the elder, holding out her hand to Mr. Paton.

ON HER WAY TO JAIL

After Firing Their Home She Stopped to Tell Her Husband.

Because her husband had brought suit for divorce, Mrs. Charles Borg, of Diamond, Ind., fired their home, and then, walking a mile to where he was living, told her husband what she had done and that she had brought her clothes along to go to jail.

Borg refused to believe his wife until he saw the smoking ruins of his house. Mrs. Borg was placed under arrest and in default of $1,000 bail went to jail. The officers believe she is insane and a commission will examine into her sanity.

I saw Chamberlain's Pain Balm advertised in the Scranton Times, got a half dollar bottle of it, but as everything else had failed, I had avery little faith in it. SAY MISS LOVING LIED

Falsehood Told Her Father Cost Theodore Estes' Life.

Houston, Va., July 1.—The following statement was given out Saturday night by counsel for Judge Loving, who had just been acquitted of the murder of Theodore Estes:

"Within half an hour after the rendition of the verdict by the jury and the adjournment of court, counsel for Judge Loving were called on by two of the jury, who stated that they had been appointed a committee representing the entire jury to convey to Judge Loving and his wife and daughter the information that while they believed that Miss Loving's statement on the witness stand of what she had told her father was a true account of what she had communicated to him, yet not for a moment did the jury entertain the opinion that an actual assault had been committed by the deceased upon the young lady; but, on the contrary, they were fully satisfied that no actual assault had been committed, but that there had been an attempted assault. Counsel for Judge Loving, upon being interviewed in this connection, said:

"The conclusion of the jury to the effect that no assault was committed was absolutely correct."

WEEDS THAT ARE VALUABLE.

Medicinal Properties in Many Plants Looked on as Pests.

It is not a matter of common knowledge that some of the weeds "infesting" the land will produce the crude drugs which to-day in large part are obtained by importation from abroad. Alice Henkel, an assistant of the government's plant industry bureau, says that the roots, leaves and flowers of several of the weed species regarded as plagues in the United States are gathered, prepared and cured in Europe, and not only for useful commodities there but supply to a considerable extent the demands of foreign lands. There are weeds in this country against which extermination laws have been passed which hold in their leaves, stems or roots medicinal properties which have a value in the work of preserving the health of the nation. It is possible in ridding land of weeds in order that crops may be grown to make of the uprooted "pests" a source of income. Moreover, it is possible to maintain upon land given over as worthless for crop-growing purposes a weed plantation, which after the harvest will prove itself to be not less profitable than some of the tilled fields.

COURT EVENLY DIVIDED

IN A LIBEL CASE IN WHICH THE KANSAS CITY STAR IS DEFENDANT.

WAS GIVEN A VERDICT OF $15,000

Valliant and Woodson Affirm Finding of Lower Court, While Lamm and Graves Give a Dissenting Opinion.

Jefferson City, Mo., July 1.—An opinion was handed down Saturday in division No. 1 of the state supreme court in the suit of Major Henry S. Julian against the Kansas City Star, libel, in which the jury in the Ray county circuit gave a verdict of $15,000.

Though the opinion was rendered the case is not yet determined, the court being equally divided, for which reason it is to be submitted to the court in banc.

Judge Valliant, chief justice of division No. 1, wrote the opinion, in which Judge Woodson concurs, affirming the finding of the trial court, while Judge Graves and Judge Lamm dissent. No dissenting opinion was written, however.

The point upon which the Star largely rested in appealing from the verdict mulcting it was the provision in the statute permitting suit to be brought against it in any county in the state, because it is a corporation, whether the plaintiff lived in the county in which the suit was brought or not.

It attacked the constitutionality of this feature of the statute, alleging it to be unconstitutional because it was class legislation, and did not afford the defendant the protection of law equal to that accorded the plaintiff.

Judge Valliant, though affirming the verdict against the newspaper, says in his opinion:

"We appreciate the force of the argument of defendant's counsel, wherein it is pointed out that under certain conditions an unfair advantage may be obtained by allowing the plaintiff to select the county in which he may bring his suit. Nevertheless, he holds, action may be brought where the plaintiff elects, whether or not it be in the county in which the cause of action accrues."

HOW THINGS HAPPEN

There is No Telling What an Incident May Bring Forth.

Last spring a Rogers, Ark., girl wrote her name on a strawberry box, says the Clinton Democrat. A E. Johnson, a Wichita mail carrier, bought the box; they corresponded, and have just been married.

Rolla Brooks, of Butler, the other day wrote his name and address on a hen's egg. It was crated and sent east and he has just received a letter from Miss Alice Powers, of Philadelphia. Rolla's friends are expecting something to happen.

Several months ago a Clinton man opened a box of Eastman films and found the name and street number of a Rochester, N. Y., girl written there.

He was a married man with several children, and there was nothing doing.

Try This Trick.

Two drummers were chatting in a trolley car. "I'll bet you a good five-cent cigar," said the first drummer, "that, without saying a word I can make the old boy opposite take out his watch and see what time it is." "I'll take that bet," the other answered. Then the first drummer watched the veteran across the aisle until he caught his eye, when he drew forth his watch and looked at it. The old man, with a thoughtful air, slowly unbuttoned his coat and consulted his own timepiece. "Give me my cigar," said the drummer. "It's the third I've won to-day on this trick. It never fails."

Precocious Children.

In the world of music we find many instances of boys giving an early indication of a remarkable career. Handel and Mozart each showed a liking for music when young in years, and soon made their mark. Handel began composing a church service for voices and instruments when only nine years old, and before he was 15 he had composed three operas. Mozart began the piano at three, and at seven he taught himself the violin. At nine years of age he visited England, and on his departure he gave a farewell concert, of which all the symphonies were composed by himself.

Use of Rubber Restricted.

Probably no substance is adapted to a greater variety of uses than rubber, but its applications are restricted by the limited supply and high cost. Among the purposes for which it has great advantages but is not likely to be extensively employed is that of paving roadways. A rubber pavement laid at a London railway station in 1881 was in 1902 worn down to five-eighths of an inch in its thinnest place. Notwithstanding the scarcity of the material, the cost was less than three times as great as that of wood, and its life has been more than 20 years instead of the four years which the wood or asphalt would have endured.

Finally the late Bill Nye came to the rescue with the suggestion that the first half of the name should be acted on at once, but that the last half should be held over until the autumn, when the weather would be cool.—The Bookman.

PASSED THE HUNDRED MARK

Mrs. Catherine Felske Was 104 Years of Age.

Grand Island, Neb., July 1.—Mrs. Catherine Felske, who at one time lived in Logan county, Ohio, near Bellefontaine, died at her home in Grand Island, aged 104 years.

Mrs. Felske remembered distinctly many things that happened in the early years of the last century. Her mind was clear and bright up to the hour of her death, and she discussed incidents of nearly 100 years ago as if they happened yesterday. Her sight was as keen as when she was young, and she never wore spectacles. She read the newspapers every day and kept thoroughly posted on current events. She did much sewing and housework also and enjoyed the companionship of children. She died of a sudden breaking down of her wonderfully rugged constitution.

In a certain parish of Greater New York the rector, while admonishing his flock on Sunday last that the collection basket receipts were steadily growing less, took occasion to declare that "certain parishioners contribute to their means, but others give in keeping with their meanness." He added that in measure such exhibitions of false pretense reminded him of the story told of the Pilgrim fathers upon their arrival at Plymouth Rock: "First they fell upon their knees; then they fell upon the aborigines."

AND THE CAT REMAINED

It was at One Hundred and Twenty-fifth street. The gates of a downtown elevated train were half closed when an old woman with sparse gray hair and deeply seamed cheeks placed one foot on the car platform. The gateman tried to close the gate, but she was half way on. He gave vent to some muttered words expressive of his displeasure, to which the old woman paid no attention. She fairly fell down on her seat, for the exertion had been too much for her. In a little while, when she had recovered her breath, she glanced about her in a furtive way. Having apparently satisfied herself that no one was watching her with a special purpose, she hugged up to her breast a disreputable old muff which had weathered some winters and gave bold evidence of a close acquaintance with the moth family. Indeed, there were only tufts of fur here and there, but the article served its purpose. Every one wondered, however, why the poor old woman with her thin form and worn-out dress was so attached to it.

Finally the muff answered these questions of its own accord, for just before the train had reached the next station a plaintive "Meow" was wafted on the air to the ears of the guard who stood near. The old woman fairly shrieked with guilt, for she knew that no animals were permitted there. To make matters worse, the first call was followed by a series of more emphatic ones—protests regarding the strangeness of the situation.

This was too much. The passengers laughed and the guard came angrily upon the scene of action. All eyes were directed toward the old woman, and to her he addressed his remarks in choice English.

"Who's got the cat?" he demanded. Silence, while all waited developments.

The cat answered for herself in heart-rending tones, which, however, had not the slightest effect on the man. She stuck out her head and proved to be old and poor, like her mistress. Besides, she had only one eye.

"See here, youse," said the gateman, threateningly, "shaking his fist in the face of the cat's protector, 'youse can get out at the next station, see?'"

"Oh, please, Mr. Conductor, don't make me leave," sobbingly pleaded the old woman. "I know it ain't just right ter bring the cat, but what am I a-goin' ter do? I ain't got no money ter hire a carriage, and I was afraid to send her on the wagon, so there was nothin' else fer me ter do. You see," she added appealingly to her listeners, "we're movin' to-day. I've had this cat ten years, and I love her like she was my own child."

"Ha! ha! listen to that!" exclaimed the guard sarcastically. "Think of the wasted affection!"

"You know," continued the old woman, not noticing him, "if you had a cat fer ten years, you know what you would have done."

"Youse ken bet I do," glibly answered the man. "Inter the river fer hers. Now, see here," he said roughly, "out youse go wid der animal."

"But mister," begged the woman, "I've got to go way down town. I can't walk."

"Youse has heard my orders. Off yer go at the next station." Sulting the action to the word, for the train was stopping, he held the gate open for her to pass out. While the old woman was trying to get to her feet a kind-faced, well-dressed woman pushed her back into her seat, and walking up to the guard, said:

"She'll do nothing of the sort, and I will see that she stays on this car."

"Ha!" sneered the man, "who are you, and what have you ter do wid der case? I'll have youse both arrested."

He then told a man to bring an officer. While the train waited the argument continued, and the old woman's champion listened to some abusive language, when suddenly things took an interesting turn. A good-natured Irishman stepped aggressively to the front.

"What this lady says goes, and if she says the cat stays, it does, and if it doesn't, I'm here to see that it is carried out," he asserted with a careless disregard for clearness of expression and a threatening display of fists.

"What's this old woman and her cat to youse?" demanded the guard. "Nothin' at all," answered the Irishman, "but this here lady I do know." Then with a wink for the lady's benefit alone: "She's Mrs. Patchouli, and sure it's her husband that's got the power to make you lose yer job, if you only knew it. If the cat goes, you go after it. Understand that."

The guard concluded that there might be some truth in the Irishman's threat. Besides, the passengers were complaining about the delay, and no policeman appeared.

The train started on its way. "Mrs. Patchouli" left the car at Forty-second street, and as she did so the old woman called out: "Heaven reward you, ma'am, for what you've done this day." And the Irishman said: "Good-day, Mrs. Patchouli. Have no fear, for I'll stand by until the cat lands."

MOURNED HIS MISTRESS

AFTER TWO ATTEMPTS "HOOLIGAN" KILLED HIMSELF BE CAUSE OF GRIEF.

THE VICTIM WAS ONLY PET MONKEY

Twice Before Had Sought to "Shuffle Off," but Not Until the Third Time Was Success Achieved.

Chicago, July 1.—"Hooligan" loved a young woman and mourned when she left. Saturday he committed suicide by hanging himself from a gas fixture by means of a chain attached to his neck. This tragic ending was the last of three attempts made by Hooligan—a monkey—to kill himself after being left alone.

"Hooligan" was the name of a small pet that had been brought up from infancy by the family of Chas. Keiler, 2107 Michigan avenue.

Katherine Carson, a 19-year-old girl who lived there, formed an attachment for the little animal and devoted much of her spare time to his amusement.

Several months ago Miss Carson left to be married. Hooligan was in despair. He haunted the room formerly occupied by the young woman and wandered disconsolately through the house looking for her cheering presence.

Six weeks ago the monkey made two attempts to kill himself. He had grown thin and emaciated and refused to eat.

One day he was found stretched out on the floor near the chair in which Miss Carson was accustomed to sit and by his side was discovered an empty ether bottle, which was used for cleaning purposes. A doctor who was called declared that Hooligan had drank part of the contents of the bottle.

The second attempt on his own life was made a few days later when the monkey swallowed part of a bottle of chloroform. He was brought back to life by liberal applications of morphine administered hypodermically.

After the second attempt at suicide Mr. Keiler tried Hooligan by a chain to a wall gas bracket in one of the down stairs rooms, and kept all instruments of self-destruction from his reach. The animal, however, was gradually starving to death. Saturday he leaped from a chair to the gas bracket and succeeded in entangling the chain so that he swung clear from the floor. When found by Mr. Keiler he was dead.

APPLIED FOR A PENSION

AS THE WIDOW OF HER HUSBAND'S BROTHER IN THE BUCKEYE STATE.

IS NOW IN JAIL WITH HER OLD MAN

If What the Pension Department Alleges Is True, the Case Is One of the Most Remarkable on Record.

Canton, Ohio, July 1.—If the claims made by the pension department can be substantiated, and the authorities assert they are undisputed, the arrest of Joseph and Emily Timms, living near Akron, on the charge of conspiring to defraud the government by a fraudulent pension claim, came to light in an unusual chain of circumstances. The Timmses, at the conclusion of a hearing Saturday before Commissioner Julius Whiting, were bound over to the United States grand jury.

The affidavits assert that in 1863 Joseph Timms, while living in Summit county, north of Hudson, married Emily Miller and took her to his parents' home.

Joseph enlisted in the army and served until its conclusion. After he had been in the army a short time, it is averred, he wrote Emily a letter, telling her that she was free and sending her $115.

In 1865 a brother of Joseph Timms (Absalom Timms) returned from the war and took Emily Timms to Indiana. From there they went to Alliance and to Pennsylvania, where she says they were married.

They landed in Warren and later in Michigan and many years ago became residents of Jefferson, Ohio. Here Timms died in 1901, after having lived with Emily for thirty-six years. They had no children.

Joseph Timms returned from the army and in 1868 married a girl named Brown, who later died.

Until seven years ago, it is asserted in the affidavits, Joseph had never seen Emily from the day he left her and went to war.

After Absalom Timms died, however, he offered her a home with him as his housekeeper. She went to live with him at his home in Minerva. Two years ago they moved to Summit county.

In January, 1907, they appeared before Pension Agent D. K. Bush in this city. Emily Timms made application for a pension as the widow of Absalom Timms. In her application, the affidavits claim, she said she had never been married before. Joseph Timms acted as her identifying witness.

HIT AN OPEN SWITCH

Missouri Pacific Passengers Jolted By a Derailment.

A Missouri Pacific passenger train, a little behind time, was making up its lost minutes between Independence and the union depot yesterday afternoon, says Monday's Kansas City Times.

The two coaches and the chair car were crowded with passengers from stations between Joplin and Kansas City. Women and babies predominated.

Near Mount Washington the passengers felt a sudden application of the air brakes and heard two sharp blasts from the locomotive whistle. Then came a jolting that jerked the passengers in their seats and the train stopped. A woman screamed and everybody piled out to learn the cause of the trouble.

The locomotive had struck an open switch. It was going too fast to "take" it, and engine, tender, baggage car, smoker and the front truck of the day coach left the rails. Nobody was hurt. A Kansas City Southern train took the passengers to the Grand Central depot at Second and Wyandotte streets.

The wrecked train was No. 215, due at the union depot at 4:15 o'clock.

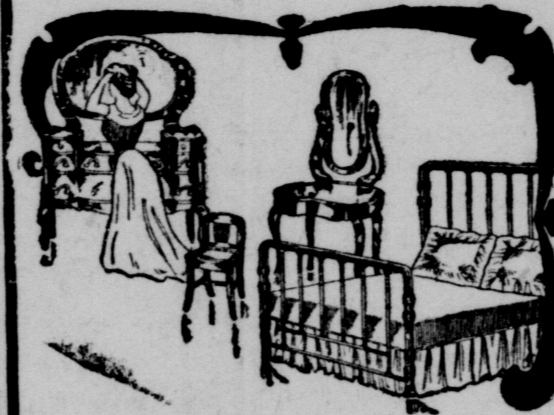

Prices Advance After July 8.

After July 8th the price of adult season tickets will be $2.50, and children's season tickets will be $1.25. Even at that price the Chautauqua is ridiculously cheap—costing only about 6 cents per session. Better get busy and secure these tickets now. It is by far the greatest program that has ever been given by a western assembly and a greater program than we shall ever have here again unless the Chautauqua receives the support which it justly deserves. AN EGG SHELL ROMANCE

Girl's Name Read by a Boston Man in His Grocery Store.

Toledo, Ohio, July 1.—When Miss Margaret Jacobs, a pretty Toledo girl, wrote her name and address in a spirit of fun on an egg some two years ago while working in a produce store and shipped that egg with a quantity of others to Boston, little did she think that it would procure her a husband. But that is what it did. The wedding was at her home here last week, when she was united in marriage to William Hock, an East Boston business man.

The egg fell into the hands of Mr. Hock, who immediately started a correspondence which has been kept up for the last two years. Three weeks ago Hock came to Toledo and met Miss Jacobs for the first time and in short order the wedding was arranged.

OLD BANKING HOUSE FAILS

Established Fifty-Five Years. McKim & Co. Lose Out.

Baltimore, Md., July 1.—The banking and brokerage house of McKim & Co., of this city, was placed in the hands of a receiver today. Withdrawals of deposits and poor business was given as the cause. The house was established fifty-five years ago.

The assignment has created much sentiment because of its old established character, but it is not regarded as showing a weakness in any other of the financial institutions of the city. The liabilities are probably $200,000.

HAD A STRIKE AT "CENTRAL"

Seven Hello Girls Walked Out Saturday Morning.

Seven switch board operators struck for higher wages in the Columbia telephone exchange Saturday morning, says the Columbia Herald of June 29.

The girls claim that on an average they get about nine cents an hour and work about ten hours a day. The girls also claim they dislike to work under Miss Potter, the new chief operator from Ferguson. Four operators did not strike.

They expect to return Saturday evening to see if anything has been done. No violence is expected.

"UNWRITTEN LAW" FAILED

A Jury Brought in a Verdict of Guilty in Spartansburg, S. C.

Spartansburg, S. C., July 1.—William H. Mills, charged with the murder of Frank Deal, in Cherokee county, three months ago, was found guilty, with a recommendation for mercy, at Gaffney Saturday.

Mills asserted that he killed Deal because he had ruined his home. His attorneys pleaded the "unwritten" law, but the judge instructed the jury that this had no weight with the court and should have none with the jury.

REGARDING RAILROADS

THE M., K. & T. IS TO GET MISSOURI PACIFIC BUSINESS IN KANSAS.

COACH, CAB AND CABOOSE ITEMS

Matters of Interest Picked Up From Various Sources for the Benefit of Democrat-Sentinel Readers.

Bangor, seven miles south of Paola, Kan., and a mile and a half east of Osawatomie, is soon to come into its own.

It is now a platform made of cast off lumber, but it will soon be a station with a depot and an agent.

The merchants of Osawatomie petitioned the Missouri, Kansas and Texas to give Bangor a place on its official map, and they promised in return three-fourths of the import and the export shipping.

The poor facilities offered by the Missouri Pacific, the only road in Osawatomie, is the cause of the action.

The Katy officials intimated that they would be ready to handle shipments out of Bangor by Sept. 1.

Street Car Men May Strike

Unless the traction company at Springfield, Mo., will grant a 20 per cent increase in wages it is probable that its employees will walk out this week.

The men now get an average of 17 cents an hour for a ten to thirteen hour day. They ask for 20 cents as the minimum wages and shorter hours.

A representative of the national union is in the city to confer with the traction officials.

W. A. Bixby, local head, has asked the union to postpone final action until he can confer with the eastern capitalists who own the road. This request will probably be agreed to.

During the month of June thirty Missouri Pacific employees were treated at the Katy hospital, nineteen medically and eleven surgically.

J. L. Thompson, railway mail clerk on the Warsaw line, is taking a two weeks' lay off, beginning today, and Earl F. Tye has the place.

The board of railroad and warehouse commissioners left Kansas City on a special train over the river route at 7 o'clock this morning.

H. C. Reeder, Missouri Pacific civil engineer, returned last afternoon from a business visit at St. Louis, and went to Independence this morning.

Harry Lewis, a Missouri Pacific machinist's apprentice, went to St. Louis today to enter the company's hospital to receive treatment for an injured wrist.

J. C. Ragsdale, a Katy trainman, went to Ulrich, Mo., yesterday, and last night accompanied home his children, Margaret and Bernice, who have been visiting there for a month.

Trainmaster W. E. Merrifield, of the Missouri Pacific; Division Engineer A. P. Morrison and Roadmaster J. M. Chandler went to Kansas City on the fast mail train this morning.

J. W. McClain, city passenger and ticket agent for the Missouri Pacific, reports a good sale of local tickets, but the amount in sales is greatly decreased on account of the 2-cent fare rate.

Street car No. 102, in charge of Motorman Edward Allen, jumped the track at Ninth street and Ingram avenue at about 10 o'clock Sunday night, delaying traffic for a short time.

J. L. Russell, a Katy passenger engineer, wife and daughters, Misses Mildred and Julia, leave Wednesday morning for a two months' visit at St. Paul, Minn., and other points in the north.

G. M. Cole, a Katy engineer, and wife, leave tomorrow for a visit in Nebraska. Mr. Cole will be absent for several days, after which his wife will visit in Colorado for the remainder of the summer.

Gary O. Sill, a railway mail clerk on Katy trains Nos. 1 and 4, between here and Parsons, began today his thirty days' leave of absence. C. C. Hall is Mr. Sill's substitute, but the car is in charge of Daniel Shute.

Paul G. Tredway, who for several months has been inspecting new engines for the Missouri Pacific in Philadelphia, writes to have the Democrat-Sentinel discontinued to him there, as he will be home this week.

TEMPERANCE LEADER DEAD

End Comes to Francis Murphy After a Long Illness.

Los Angeles, Cal., July 1.—Francis Murphy, the apostle of temperance, died at 10:30 a. m. yesterday.

Francis Murphy was born in Wexford, Ireland, April 24, 1836. He received only a common school education. Coming to America he was married April 10, 1856, to Elizabeth J. Ginn, of New York. He served in the union army during the civil war.

He took up the work of temperance agitation, and delivered his first public address at Portland, Me., April 3, 1870. He was active in the prohibition movement there, and organized the Temperance Reform Clubs of Maine, becoming their first president.

His first address at Pittsburg, Pa., was delivered November 26, 1874. There 45,000 people signed the pledge in what was called the "Old Home church," in Fifth avenue.

His work spread throughout the country until more than 10,000,000 had taken the pledge. He afterward had successful temperance work in England. During the war with Spain Mr. Murphy served as an army chaplain.

His home was in Pittsburg, Pa., but he spent the greater part of the time traveling in evangelistic and temperance work.

HINTON-DURRILL NUPTIALS

Friends in Pettis County Will Extend Congratulations.

Joseph Herbert Hinton and Miss Anna L. Durrill were married Sunday at the home of her parents, Mr. and Mrs. J. C. Durrill, on Butler creek, three miles west of Bartlesville, says the Bartlesville, I. T., Examiner of June 29.

The ceremony was performed by Rev. J. N. Edwards, pastor of the Baptist church. The guests were limited to the immediate friends and relatives of the families. Following the ceremony a splendid dinner was served.

Mr. Hinton is an employee of the Barnsdall Oil company, and Mrs. Hinton until lately attended the Bartlesville High school. They are a most excellent young couple, and when they return to Bartlesville from the Durrill home and begin housekeeping in the Armstrong addition they will be heartily congratulated by their many friends.
